OBSERVED THEIR BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARIES

Mr. and Mrs. Brickett Greeted by Their Friends

MR. EDMUND BRICKETT

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Brickett, of 65 Dover street, one of the oldest couples in this city, today quietly observed their birthday anniversaries. Mr. Brickett is 81 years old today and his wife is 78. While the latter's birthday came on the 20th of the present month, for many years they have observed their anniversaries jointly and this year is no exception. This evening there will be an informal concert and during the day many friends called and congratulated the venerable couple. Both are very active considering their advanced years, particularly Mr. Brickett, who at the present time attends to active business.

If both live until the 10th of next January, they will observe their 69th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Brickett is descended on both sides from old New England families who trace their ancestry back for many generations and who like most of the early settlers, were engaged in agricultural pursuits. They were noted for their longevity, which undoubtedly accounts for the ripe age that Mr. Brickett now enjoys. His father, Abram Brickett, was born in Newbury, Vermont, in 1800 and died in Newark, Vermont, Feb. 10, 1883. His mother was born in 1800, in Peacham, Vermont and passed away in Danville, Vermont, August 10, 1874.

Edmund Brickett was born in Peacham, Vermont, May 26, 1831 and he is the fifth child of Abram and Violette Brickett. He was educated in the public schools of his native town and Cabot, Vermont, whither his family had removed, until he attained his eighteenth year. His first occupation was farming in which he engaged until 20 years of age. In 1851 he came to Lowell and found employment in the carding room of the Tremont and Suffolk mills. In four months he was promoted to section hand in the weaving room, remaining one year and leaving to accept the same position with the Appleton corporation where he remained until 1854.

On January, 1852 Mr. Brickett was united in marriage to Lucy F. Flint, daughter of Asa Flint of Walden, Vermont, the ceremony being performed at the Highland Congregational church on Westford street. They had known each other in Vermont and it was shortly after Miss Flint came here that the wedding took place. After the wedding Mrs. Brickett was not in the best of health so her husband purchased a farm in Cabot, Vermont, where they went and remained 18 years. They then returned to Lowell and Mr. Brickett conducted a corporation boarding house for the Tremont & Suffolk for four and one half years.

In July 1887 he opened a coal and wood office at 6 Fletcher street and disposed of his interest in the boarding house. He devoted his time to the office and did considerable building until 1896 when he sold out his business and intended to retire. While he gave up the office he continued to do small jobs.

Two children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Brickett, Leroy A. who passed away when he was very young and Emma M. The latter married Charles F. Robinson, and at the present time occupies a beautiful residence at 566 Huntington avenue, Boston. They have one son, George Edmund Robinson and he is a great favorite with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Brickett. Mrs. Robinson spends considerable time with her parents here and she is well and favorably known as a teacher of the piano. Her husband, Mr. Robinson, is in business at 1000 Commonwealth ave., and her son who recently graduated from Cornell university, as a master mechanic, now holds a very responsible position. These are the only relatives of the happy couple, and they are among those present at the anniversary celebration today.

COURT DECISION AGAINST B. & N. ROAD

The Full Bench Overrules the Exceptions

HALF FARE ISSUE WAS INVOLVED

The Company Contested the Statute

BOSTON, March 25.—The full bench of the supreme judicial court has over-ruled the exceptions of the Boston & Northern St. Ry. Co., which was found guilty in Essex county of violating a state law by refusing to transport at half fare one of the pupils of the Lawrence Industrial school. The company contested the statute on the grounds that it was in violation of the tenth article of the bill of rights of Massachusetts in that it sought to appropriate the property of the defendant without reasonable compensation. The Boston & Northern Co. since consolidation with other lines, as the Bay State company, operated lines in Boston, Gloucester, Haverhill, Lawrence, Lowell, Lynn and numerous other places. In 1910 the company carried 935,450 children of the public day schools at half fare but refused to sell half fare tickets to pupils of evening and industrial schools because of the additional expense to which the company was put in operating its lines.

LOTS OF EXCITEMENT AT FIRE TODAY

Little Damage Done by the Blaze

An alarm from box 23 about 1.30 o'clock this afternoon summoned a portion of the fire department to 54 Coburn street, but when the firemen arrived on the scene it was found that the fire had been extinguished. The blaze was trivial and it was not necessary to call the department.

A woman who occupied the second story of the building was using a cloth to polish the kitchen stove when the cloth caught fire. She threw it out of the window into the street and some excited person seeing it rushed to the nearest box and pulled in the alarm.

The building is three stories high and the greater portion of the first floor is used as a variety store by Margaret O'Brien. Although the store has been closed for the past week it was thought that the woman, who occupies several rooms in the rear of the store, was inside and people in the vicinity smashed the glass in the doors and kicked in the panels, but an investigation showed that the rear rooms were not occupied.

Hundreds of people were attracted to the scene and it was with difficulty that Sergt. Maguire and Patrolman O'Brien cleared the streets in the vicinity. The two officers remained at the building until the doors had been boarded up.

RUSHING WORK ON B. & M. SHOPS

It is Expected that the Buildings Will be Completed Before the Winter Sets in—Considerable Culvert Work Had to be Done

NEW BRIDGE OVER THE MAIN LINE AT POND STREET BETWEEN THE TWO VILLAGES.

The work on the development of the land for the new car shops and the locomotive works of the Boston & Maine railway at Billerica is progressing rapidly, and it is expected that before the snow flies the buildings will have been constructed.

At the present time there are several gangs of men working in the three sections, but the principal point of activity is in section two, where piles are being driven for the support of the new buildings.

The grading of the land is almost completed and the engineers expect that this work will be finished within a month.

What was once a dense forest and swamp land has been transformed into a level plain. The trees, and there were many of them, have been cleared away, the hills removed and the sand and dirt taken from these were used to fill in the swamp and lowlands. The elevations and depressions were very irregular prior to the time that the workmen started to bring the place to grade. There were hills at some points and swamps at others producing a vast extended plain from Billerica to the main lines of railroad tracks.

Engineer S. P. Coffin who has general charge of the work, has made great progress and people who have occasion to visit the site from time to time marvel at the wonderful change.

At first it was thought that it would not be necessary to drive any piles for the foundation of the new shops, but later it was learned that piling would make a more substantial foundation owing to the condition of the ground.

There were three steam shovels in operation at the start but at the present time there is but one, that shovel being operated in section one, which is near the main part of the town.

Inasmuch as the Middlesex canal runs across the land in section three it was necessary to do considerable culvert work. The water tank on the premises in section three has been erected and is now in operation.

Laying the Foundation

Workmen are now engaged in placing a foundation for the locomotive shops and piling for the fire house and

THE SITUATION IN CUBA IS GROWING MORE SERIOUS

TAFT OPPOSES INTERVENTION

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Private despatches to the state department during last night all agreed that the negro revolutionary movement in Cuba was hourly growing more serious.

The Washington government, it can be stated, is preparing for eventualities but will wait another day or two before sending any more marines or troops to the island. The Cuban government will be given adequate time to demonstrate its ability or inability to clear out at least a part of the revolution before the American forces now enroute to Guantanamo are augmented.

The plans for increasing the armed forces in Cuba, it is carefully pointed out here, do not contemplate intervention. The troops would be used merely as a protective force. If the Cuban government, finding itself unable to quell the disorders, should ask for American aid the matter would be thoroughly discussed by the president and his cabinet before action was taken. Mr. Taft, it is said, is very averse to intervention, or any move that could be interpreted as such.

Some of today's despatches seemed to point to the need of dispatching marines to various plantations and American properties in the island to act as guards but as yet no detachments have been ordered out of the naval reservation at Guantanamo. Until the arrival of the cruiser Prairie about Monday with the battalion of marines and the gunboats Paducah and Nashville, probably late today there is not much of an American force to be used, as only one company of marines comprising about 100 men is kept at the naval station.

OPERETTA "SYLVIA" WELL PRESENTED

Large Audience Enjoyed Real Treat

"Sylvia," an operetta in two acts, was presented last night in Abbott's hall, Forge village by the members of St. Catherine's choir, Graniteville, before an audience that packed the hall. The storm in the early part of the evening did not interfere with the attendance. The American orchestra of Lowell of five pieces, Emil Borjes, director, was in attendance and assisted the cast in the opera. Prior to the performance an overture by the orchestra was given that was well received. To the director, Mr. James A. Murphy of Lowell, high praise is due for his work and careful training. The chorus work was far above the expectations of the audience and was more like a chorus of professionals than that of amateurs. Especially pleasing were the solos, duet and quartet numbers. They were all obliged to respond to encores.

The chorus at the end of the first act was especially pleasing. Joseph Wall of Graniteville was the stage manager and the work was carefully attended to under his direction. "Sylvia," the part portrayed by Miss Lillian Moran was the leading role and she met every requirement of her part. Her rich soprano voice was heard to good advantage and her acting was as pleasing as her singing. "Betty" the next leading female character was taken by Miss Clara McCoy, the leading alto singer in St. John's Choral society, and the excellent quality of her voice stood her in good stead in this exacting role. Her acting was particularly good, especially in the scenes with "William" and "Sylvia," James Burns assumed the character of "Sir Bertram DeLacy" the court poet, faultlessly. Fred Defoe as "Prince Tobbytom" was exceptionally good, especially in the part of the "man of consequence." "Bob" McCarthy, in the character of the farmer, handled his role capably. The other leading characters were taken by Miss Saidee Smith and Mary Gardner as the ladies of court and their songs were well received. Misses Catherine Ward and Carrie Prinn while not assigned to exacting parts were very clever.

After the operetta dancing was enjoyed until midnight. Music being furnished by the American orchestra. During intermission refreshments were served by the ladies of the parish. A large number of the members of St. John's parish attended the affair and were highly pleased with the performance. It is hoped that in the near future the operetta will be presented in North Chelmsford.

ALDERMAN BARRETT OPPOSED TO CITY BORROWING $300,000

HEARING TO BE HELD MONDAY

The bill to empower the city of Lowell to borrow $300,000 will go before the committee on cities of the legislature on Monday forenoon. The bill will be presented by City Solicitor Hennessy.

Alderman Barrett will oppose the bill. He said today that he would go before the committee on cities and argue against the bill. "I do not believe in borrowing this money," he said, "and I will oppose the bill. We have been told by men who are supposed to be great lawyers that the $700,000 owed by the city cannot be collected; that the debt is illegal because of the way it was contracted. The same attorneys told us last year that the thing was legal and I want to find out where we are at.

"There has been too much confidence placed in wrong quarters and I would like to see this matter worked out to a logical conclusion. The obligation is coming due July 1, and I think the proper course would be to let it go and test the legality of the whole business. I do not believe that we should recommend borrowing of big sums of money to protect this man or that man from being shown up. Somebody is responsible for the present condition of affairs and I want to see the blame placed where it belongs.

"I do not believe that the suggestions offered by Mr. Gettemy should be followed. I know that Mr. Wardell of Mr. Gettemy's office is an expert and I do not pretend to say that I could match him at figures, but I do know that my practical knowledge of affairs in this city is better than his."

It is understood that the bill to be presented will be supported by Mayor O'Donnell and Commissioners Cummings, Brown and Donnelly. It will also receive the support of the state bureau of statistics. The hearing will be held at 10.30 Monday forenoon at room 436, state house.

50 CENTRAL STREET

STORM CAUSED ACCIDENT AND 12 WERE INJURED

SAUGUS, May 25.—More than a dozen persons were injured when two cars of the Bay State Street Railway company came together in a rear-end collision in the darkness incident to a heavy thunder storm last evening.

One was a regular car from Wakefield to Lynn, and was crowded with working people on their way to their homes. Following it was a special car loaded with Lynn people who had been attending a land sale.

The cars had reached North Saugus where the roadway winds around through the woods when the storm broke. The sudden darkness and the sheets of rain made it almost impossible to see any distance.

The special rounded a curve and before the motorman realized it, he was too close to the forward car to avoid striking. Both cars were badly damaged. Wakefield and Saugus physicians attended the injured.

A COMMOTION

CAUSED BY THE EXPLOSION OF CARTRIDGES

There was quite a commotion in Gorham street near the Lowell Trust company about 11.30 o'clock this forenoon when cartridges were exploded in a rather unusual way. The cartridges were in the street and were run over by a heavy wagon. About six of the cartridges were discharged and persons in the immediate vicinity were somewhat alarmed. The cartridges were for a 22 calibre gun or pistol and there were about 15 of them in the street. Who put them there or how they got there is the question.

APPEAL FOR FUNDS BY LOWELL GUILD

To Fight the Scourge of Cholera Infantum

The Lowell Guild appeals to everyone interested in babies, for contributions, large or small, for the work of the milk station the coming summer. It is a fight against the scourge of cholera infantum.

It is the policy of the Guild to live within its income, and it has sufficient funds on hand to do its regular work in district nursing and care of babies for the year, but in order to extend the work among the babies it will be necessary to raise sufficient money to meet the increased expense and it is hoped the friends of the Guild who know what has been accomplished will be willing to lend a hand.

The record of the station for last summer speaks for itself. Of nearly one hundred babies cared for, only one died. This year it is hoped many more may be looked after. The extent of the work will be limited only by the funds received. The need for this special work comes with the first hot weather, and it is hoped the response to this appeal will be prompt and generous.

Make cheques payable to George R. Chandler, who will receive all contributions at the Union bank.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The regular meeting of Passaconaway tribe of Red Men was held last night in Odd Fellows temple. There was a large attendance and considerable business was transacted during the course of the evening. Acting Sachem George B. Ryan presided. At the next meeting the degree staff will perform the ceremony of adoption on the pateface and all of the staff are expected to be present. The sick committee gave an encouraging report of the brothers unable to follow the hunt. The acting sachem instructed Brother J. H. Hickey to have an appropriate floral wreath placed on the monument Memorial day. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served and an excellent entertainment was given by the Honey Boy minstrels, W. H. Way, director.

The Foresters

Court Wamesit 51, F. of A., met in regular session last night in Pilgrim hall and transacted considerable routine business. Chief Ranger Henry J. Dreyer was in the chair and two applications were received and one candidate was initiated. Reports were heard and a tribute paid to the memory of Brother Patrick Vesey, who died since the last meeting.

The members of the class who were responsible for the success of the affair were Misses Ethel Richardson, Jennie Houle and Bernice Brown. The class colors were very prominent among the decorations.

KOSCIUSKO MONUMENT

To be Unveiled on the 30th of May

YONKERS, N. Y., May 25.—The monument to Thaddeus Kosciusko (Polish spelling Kosciuszko) will be unveiled May 30 in front of the Polish school and convent. The monument, erected by popular subscription, was the result of a suggestion made Sunday, January 29, 1911, in a sermon by the Rev. Joseph C. Dworzak, rector of St. Casimir's church. The unveiling will follow a parade in which many patriotic societies will take part. There will be addresses by the Rev. Mr. Dworzak, Mayor James T. Lennon, Judge Joseph Beall, Colonel Joseph Smolinski of Washington and others.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

The gladsome hot weather cometh and with it a desire to get into a cool place. No place in town will be better fitted to take care of overheated humanity than B. F. Keith's new theatre in Bridge street, where one can revel in cool breezes and at the same time watch excellent vaudeville and the very latest vintage of motion pictures. Let one be comfortable and a show goes with a whole lot of pleasure, but the seeker after entertainment in hot weather, who is suffering from the heat, couldn't appreciate the best show on earth. Topping the big bill of next week are Theo Lightner and Elvia Bates, two brilliant performers, who give their splendid piano duolog, replete with new songs, brilliant patter and first class piano playing. Misses Lightner and Bates are good to look upon and better, even to listen to.

A farce comedy that cannot fail to interest is "An Editorial Substitute," played by Miss Margaret Bird and Edward F. Roseman. A most humorous story is told in the piece. The substitute for a woman editorial writer on a newspaper chances to meet one of the paper's regular women correspondents. She has always imagined that the most feminine of creatures looks after the woman's page. When, however, she is confronted by a burly man who writes the most delightful matter, complications arise. They cannot fail to, for the little piece is so constructed as to almost play itself. Miss Bird is a charming young woman, and Mr. Roseman is an excellent actor. The quartet of the theatre, consisting of Misses Isleib and Von Brocklin and Messrs. MacAdams and Lloyd will give "A Seaside Garden," a pretty musical sketch in which all of the very latest songs are sung. Thor, the droll comedy musician, offers some splendid stuff.

Four brand new motion pictures will be thrown onto the silvered surface, included among them being "The Rivals," a very pretty romance of the beautiful San Catalina island, off the Californian coast. An expert woman swimmer has been drafted into play for the picture and some of the most thrilling scenes imaginable appear on the film. "Darby and Joan," a motion picture subject drawn from the old poem, and showing the very acme of marital felicity, a rare subject in pictures these days, is another good subject. "A Western Legacy" and "A Good Catch" are other Essanay subjects to be treated. In addition there are the musical numbers by the orchestra. Prices are 5, 10 and 15 cents the cream of entertainment for the minimum of price.

The special entertainments to be given Sunday afternoon and evening will include four vaudeville acts, with six positively new pictures.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"At Textile," a musical comedy, put on by The Temple Players, will be one of the attractions at the Merrimack Square Theatre for the coming week. The sketch is an original creation, containing all of the school songs and yells, with a pleasant intermingling of bright comedy and the latest and best song-hits of the season, that combine in making the offering the equal of any of the presentations heretofore given by this company of entertainers. Miss Hawthorne and the other members of the cast will be heard in pleasing numbers and the chorus work and other features will share in the satisfactory results which the piece is sure of attaining. William P. Goodale's own composition, "The Lost Chord Rag," will be a feature as well as other school songs. Thos. Whiteley, one of the survivors of the Titanic will give an interesting recital of incidents and happenings which occurred at the time that ship was in collision with an iceberg at sea and more than 1000 passengers went with it to the bottom of the ocean. Whiteley was employed as a steward by the White Star Steamship company and was among the last persons, among the survivors, to leave the ship before she took her fatal plunge beneath the surface of the sea. He, together with other members of the ship's crew were placed in command of the last lifeboat to be sent off, and as a result of his trying experiences he was confined to a hospital in New York City for some days after landing there on the rescue ship Carpathia.

Danny Simonds, known as the "Millionary Hobo," is one of the most amusing comedians on the vaudeville stage. Simonds is well known locally, having been associated with the Adam Good Stock company which played here for several seasons. He has a fund of original comedy which he handles in an artistic manner. George Lewis will be the week's soloist. The photo-plays for the first three days of the week, which are shown in Lowell for the first time will include "Their Hero," "Sing Lee and the Bad Man," "The Girl with the Lantern," and others equally as good. The views of present-day events will be added features.

For the sacred concerts Sunday afternoon and evening Manager Carroll has secured six high-class vaudeville acts and a new and novel series of photo-plays that have never before been shown in Lowell.

Remember that the Merrimack Square Theatre is "the coolest spot in town."

THEATRE VOYONS

Tonight affords the public of Lowell the last chance to see Professor Optimo, the disciple of happiness, at the Theatre Voyons. He is one of the great benefactors of today for he has been preaching the gospel of smile and be happy for years in all countries and before all kinds of people. See him and be happy. Pathe's Weekly shows many most interesting events which have occurred recently and among them is a most interesting one of Cardinal Gibbons delivering an address at the unveiling of a monument to Bishop Carroll, the founder of Georgetown university. Another shows Henry Cabot Lodge in a most unsenatorial occupation planting a tree. The dramatic subject is excellent and the musical program is unapproached.

BILLERICA

The interlocking switch and signal tower of the Boston & Maine in Billerica is to be discontinued tomorrow at 11 a. m. From now on the switches will be operated by hand at the point where each switch is located. The discontinuance of the use of the tower will make more work for the station inasmuch as the telegraphing will be done from that place, and two extra telegraphers will be added to the force in order to take care of the extra work. Messrs. MacDonald, Russell and Sheridan, who have been employed as operators in the tower for a number of years will be assigned to other towers.

Attended Services for Late Adelard Landry

The body of the third victim of last Friday's automobile accident on the boulevard, Adelard Landry, was laid at rest this morning in St. Joseph's cemetery, after a very impressive service had been held at St. Jean Baptiste church. The attendance in church was very large showing the esteem in which deceased was held.

The funeral took place from the family home, 12 Gershom avenue, and the long cortege headed by a carriage literally filled with flowers, wended its way to the church, where at 9 o'clock solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated, the celebrant being the pastor of the parish, Rev. Caisse, rendered Perreault's harmonized mass. As the body was being borne into the church Mr. Arthur J. SEVERE STORM STRUCK CITY
SEVERAL ALARMS OF FIRE
THE RAIN FELL IN TORRENTS

A spectacular electrical storm accompanied by torrential downpours of rain held this city in tight embrace for more than three hours yesterday afternoon and while the lightning struck in several places no very serious damage has been reported. The storm piled up the expense bills of the Lowell Electric Light corporation, the New England Telephone and Telegraph company, the Bay State railway and other public utility companies. Lightning struck the Immaculate Conception church in Belvidere. The bolt struck the gutter and entered the basement of the church on the wires leading to the motor of the organ. The fuses were blown out and a can of paint that was used by painters doing repair work was set on fire but was readily and easily extinguished. Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O. M. I., was in the basement at the time and assisted in putting out the fire. Lightning also struck the new main of the Lowell Gas Light company on School Street bridge and made a large hole in the iron pipe. Fire was started from the escaping gas and the firemen were summoned to extinguish the blaze. Several trees were destroyed and great damage was done to wires. Considerable damage was done in suburban towns. In a house in Chelmsford the telephone battery box in the sitting room was torn off and tossed into a chair.

A more marked contrast in weather conditions would be hard to find or even to imagine. At 3 o'clock the city was sweltering in the grip of the first real hot wave of the season and at 4 o'clock the lightning was playing across the sky in jagged streaks, there was roll upon roll of thunder, the rain was coming down in torrents and there had been a quite remarkable fall in the temperature.

To be very accurate about it, it should be written that there were three storms instead of one but they were in such quick succession as to almost run into each other and to speak of them as one storm is permissible. There was a series of fire alarms but there were no serious fires.

House Was Struck

A house at 162 Sanders avenue, owned by David Libby, was damaged by lightning, as was also a house in Belvidere owned by Hon. Charles S. Lilley, and another house in Hale street, near the railroad bridge. There were some narrow escapes of occupants of buildings but no one was injured. The storm or storms were the most severe seen in this city for years.

Trees Were Destroyed

Trees on Loring, Jewett and London streets were struck by lightning and will have to be removed. Considerable damage was done to fruit trees in towns near Lowell, by lightning, rain and high wind.

Cars Were Disabled

It was a bad storm for the street railway people and car after car was put out of commission in all parts of the city and some of the cars that weathered the storm gave up the ghost later in the evening, crippling the service and presenting a vexing and perplexing tangle for the management to straighten out. There were a great many people subjected to long and tiresome waits, but everybody who was forced to wait appreciated the fact that the company was doing its level best to keep things moving and everything considered the company did very well. Every line in the city and suburbs was more or less affected and the damage to cars will cost the company quite a sum of money.

Telephone Wires Disabled

More than 200 telephone wires were silenced and the service was all to the bad. There are telephone men in all sections of the city this morning repairing the damage to wires and repairing wires on a day when there is so much electricity lurking in the air is not the safest proposition in the world, but the work must be done and there are men who are willing to take the chance.

Houses in Darkness

The Lowell Electric Light corporation was another public service corporation that had troubles of its own. Over 200 calls were sent to the light station after the first section of the storm had worn off and before seven o'clock six repair crews were working tooth and nail. Supt. John A. Hunnewell said it was the worst electric storm he had seen since his connection with the electric lighting business. "I want to state," said Mr. Hunnewell, "that we appreciate the courtesy shown us by the people of Lowell and vicinity in regard to the damage done to our lines in their houses. It seemed that everybody realized the seriousness of the storm and put up with the inconvenience caused, with the best possible grace. We had crews of men on the job in short time, but everything cannot be done at once."

Many Fire Alarms

In the very worst of the storm box 115 rang out and the firemen went to it with a will. The break in the gas main in School street was responsible for the alarm, but the fire didn't amount to much. A little later there was a call from box 63 that summoned the firemen to the Crosby residence in Hale street, where a bolt had struck a chimney going down through it and driving out a lot of smoke and soot, but there was no fire. The firemen were congratulating themselves on being let down easy when there was an alarm from box 85. A lightning bolt doing stunts on the residence of David Libby, 162 Sanders avenue, was responsible for the alarm. The bolt tore through the tiles of the roof, but trailed out without doing any further harm, and started a fire in the barn nearby. The department arrived in good season, however, and put the fire out in a very few minutes.

Out in Chelmsford

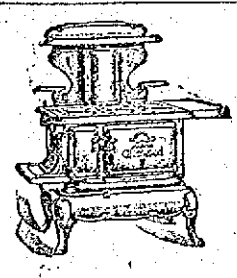

The oldest residents in Chelmsford declared that the storm of yesterday was the worst in years and there were narrow escapes from serious injury.

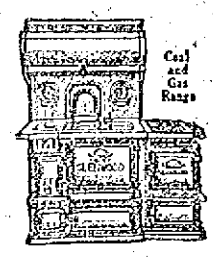

W. C. Ward's house on Westford street was struck by the lightning, the bolt entering through the clapboards near the eaves on the north side of the house, tearing a hole in the plastering, exposing the laths and in another place scorching the wall paper. In the house at the time were Mrs. Ward, her daughters, Elizabeth and Eleanor and her husband's mother, Mrs. Charles Ward. None of them was injured, although Mrs. Chas. Ward who was seated in a chair in her room, was thrown to the floor. Going into the hall, she discovered the spread on a bed in the room entered by the lightning to be on fire and she quickly extinguished the blaze before serious damage had been done. In the next chamber on the south side of the house the greatest havoc was worked. A large mirror on a dresser was shattered into tiny pieces and showered over the room, the force with which they were scattered being demonstrated by a quantity of the fragments imbedded in the opposite wall. Pictures were thrown from the walls and a piece of the moulding about the mirror, perhaps two feet in length was driven into the wall near the ceiling. A window in this room was broken, and it was apparent from a hole in the roof just over this chamber that the lightning made its exit at this point. A small mark on the chimney in the kitchen was the only evidence on the first floor of the lightning's visit. When the house was struck Mrs. W. C. Ward was in the cellar and that part of the bolt that went down the chimney seemed to fill the cellar with flame.

During the first storm shingles were torn by a bolt from the roof of an ornamental well house in the yard at Walter B. Emerson's on North street, and the telephone battery box in the sitting room was torn off and tossed into a Morris chair. Fortunately no one was injured.

Storm Bad in Billerica

The storm was said to be the worst to visit Billerica in years and the rain came down in torrents. A barn owned by Andrew Benson was struck by a bolt during the first storm and was completely destroyed by fire and a horse was burned to death.

BABY'S HEAD ITCHED SO COULD NOT SLEEP

Sores Began to Come on Cheeks. Were Raw as Could Be. Would Scratch Till They Bled. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In 6 Weeks Baby Well as Ever.

125 Clark St., Clinton, Mass. — "My babies are twin boys and at the age of three months one of them began to have sores on his head which looked like little pimples. In a few days it was raw and swollen. I tried all I thought was good for humors till it began to come on his two cheeks. They were as raw as could be and behind one ear it was almost cut through. Baby would scratch his cheeks till they bled and many nights I had to sit up in bed and rub his head with my hand, for it would itch so he could not sleep.

"The doctor told me it was eczema. I had heard lots about Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, so I sent for a sample and I found on the fourth day baby slept better and the swelling was gone. The water no longer ran from his head, and he made no attempt to scratch. So I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and in six weeks' time baby was as well as ever.

"His head was so covered with sores I had to cut his hair close to his head. Now his hair has grown long and he has had no more sores. If every mother feels as I did to see their little ones suffer and try to rub the little head on the pillow to get some relief, they will try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment to cure baby." (Signed) Mrs. John Brooks, Nov. 17, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book. Address, "Cuticura," Dept. T, Boston. Tender-faced men should shave with Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick.

Revival of the Old Fashioned Sash for Summer Wear

FLOWER SASH ON GIRL'S EVENING FROCK

The revival of the old fashioned sash is a welcome fact to most women who realize what an important factor sashes are to any frock and particularly the part they play in freshening up old costumes.

Black velvet or satin is the favored material for the directoire sash girdle. Indeed, velvet ribbon in all wide widths is used in a number of smart ways. One very good arrangement is that of black velvet draped around the waist in loose folds and finished in the back with two long rounded ends. One of the ends is a trifle longer than the other, with the longest point reaching about twenty inches from the hem of the skirt. A narrow quilling of black satin ribbon outlines the ends and also trims the flat pump bow at the waist line.

The girl's evening frock illustrated has a delightful sash effect trimmed with roses and a fringe of ribbons with dangling rosebuds. The draped bodice is adorned with tiny rosebuds in the same pastel colors. A corsage rose is held in the hand, and in the hair is a wreath of small coiffure roses, all fashioned of ribbon. With this dancing frock are worn dancing boots of black satin with crystal buttons.

LOWELL LOST 12 INNING GAME TO FALL RIVER

Score 1 to 0—A Great Pitchers' Battle Between Maybohm and Arminger

FALL RIVER, May 25.—Fall River yesterday defeated Lowell in a twelve inning game by the score of 1 to 0. The game marked the fourth defeat of the week for the Lowell team.

It was a pitchers' battle between Maybohm and Arminger and though the Fall River men only got seven hits off Maybohm while the Lowell men got nine, the former's hits came at a more opportune time. In the final inning Captain Devine started off with a single past Boultes, Bowcock hit to Cooney and the latter threw high to first and the runner got on. Hickman bunted to Maybohm and beat it out to first. Miller banged a grounder to Miller and Devine beat the throw to the plate for the winning tally.

The game was one of the best played at Fall River this season and many feature plays were pulled off. Pop Rising had a good day with the willow, getting three hits out of five times up. Another feature was the time that the game was played in, it taking just one hour and fifty-eight minutes to go through the entire twelve innings. The score:

There Are a Few Good Batting Pitchers, But the Majority of the Twirlers Are Very Weak With the Stick

There are many queer features in baseball, and one of the strangest of these is the brass bound rule that a good pitcher is a poor batter.

Of course there are exceptions to the rule, but the majority of the twirlers in the big leagues are very weak with the stick. In the old days little attention was given to the batting of the boxmen, but of late years they are ordered to take their turn in batting practice as well as the other players. The result is that there are several pitchers in the game today that can wallop the ball as well as those who are in the game every day.

In Jack Coombs and Charley Bender the Philadelphia Athletics have two pitchers who can do some good stick work. Last season the former's hit around .300. Ray Caldwell of the New York Americans is another who can whale the ball. Otey Crandall of the New York Giants is the best hitting twirler of the National league, and Harry McIntyre of the Chicago Cubs is a close second. Patsy Flaherty, late of the Boston Nationals, is another pegger who can punch the ball.

Ed. Walsh of the Chicago White Sox is one of the best hitting pitchers in the American league, and Bill Donovan, George Mullin and Gus Willett of Detroit can soak 'em here and there, but those who can both pitch and hit are not numerous.

SOME PITCHERS WHO ARE HANDY WITH THE WILLOW

In talking about hitting pitchers recently Russell Ford, the star twirler of the New York Americans, said: "Each pitcher does about two-thirds of the tolling furnished for that game upon each team. An infielder may average five chances and an outfielder three, but the pitcher and his catcher are mixed up in every play made, for the ball must be thrown before it can be pushed into additional play. This physical and mental strain is a tough game is heavy. I know that by the fourth or fifth inning I'm content to center all I have left on preventing others from hitting, with no great ambition the other way round. I like my hits as well as the next one, but I am thinking more of the hits I can choke off than the hits I can make.

The Cincinnati club is living up to its reputation of developing star players for other teams. For years the Reds have turned loose men who have played great ball for other teams.

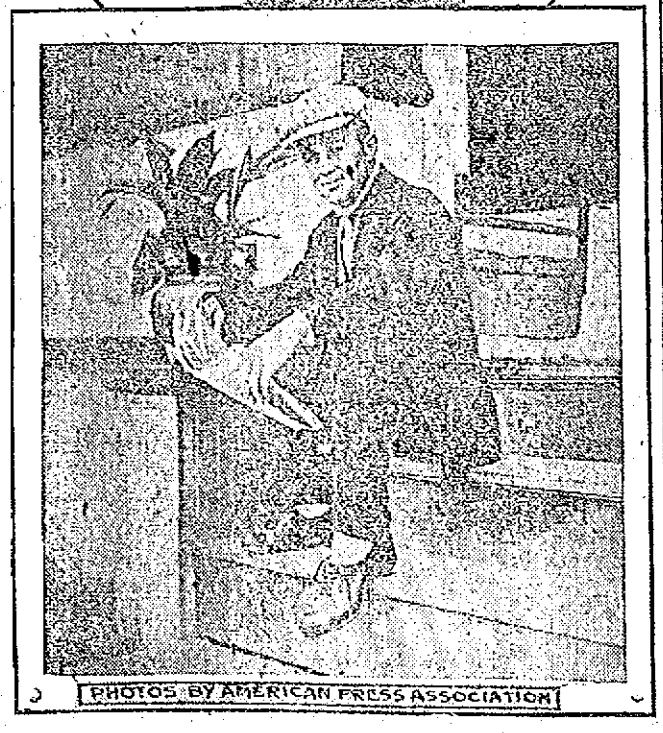

Pitchers Jean Dubuc of the Detroit Tigers and Elmer Brown of the St. Louis Browns are the latest examples. Cincinnati picked Dubuc after he had pitched great ball for Notre Dame. He was tried in Cincinnati two seasons and then turned over to Montreal. Now he is the star pitching recruit of the Detroit club.

Red Nelson recommended Elmer Brown to the Reds last spring. Griff procured an option on him from the Columbus club, which had farmed him out to Akron. Brown was in poor shape when he reported to the Reds. Griffith decided he wouldn't do because of his failure to produce a good curve ball. Brown returned to Akron and had another big year. Now he promises to stick with the Browns.

Mike Donlin, Cy Seymour, Al Bridwell, Mike Mowrey, "Rebel" Oakes, Miller Huggins, Orval Overall and Harry Stelnfeldt are a few other players who starred after being traded by the Reds.

POLICE LEAGUE

HAS BEEN DIVIDED INTO TWO DIVISIONS

Manager Jack Donovan of the Lowell police ball team attended a meeting in Chelsea yesterday of representatives of the Massachusetts Police Baseball league. There was a general discussion of the league's prospects and it was decided to divide the league into two divisions. This was done so the schedule may be finished quicker.

Under the new arrangement six teams will make up each of the two divisions and the winners of each division will meet at the close of the season in the final game for the championship. As a result of this change all games played up to date will be thrown out.

Division 1 is to be made up of Metropolitan Park, Revere, Beverly, Lynn, Salem and Lowell. Division 2 is composed of Cambridge, Newton, Quincy, Somerville, Chelsea and Everett.

The next game to be played in Lowell will be on Wednesday of the coming week when Revere will meet the pindle City coppers at Spalding park.

BOXING GOSSIP

Sandy Ferguson is really training and when he steps into the Arena building in Boston to meet Tom Kennedy next Tuesday night local boxing fans will see him lighter and in better condition than he has been in his entire career.

The Chelsea Giant has been a good boy for nearly a year and has at last awakened to the possibilities for a good "white hope." He is doing more hard training for this match than he was ever known to do before. In the morning he hits the roads along the Revere boulevard for eight miles. In the afternoon he works in the gymnasium for one solid hour without a let-up. His "gym" stunts consist of rope skipping, bag punching, shadow work and a six round set-to with George Byers.

If he wins from Kennedy he will be in line to secure matches with Al Palzer, Al Kaufman, Tony Ross, Jim Stewart and the rest of the "heavies." Another chance at Jack Johnson is what Sandy is striving for and if he can defeat Kennedy it will be a real stepping stone toward his goal.

Ferguson has met Champion Johnson in six, ten and twenty round contests and has no more fear of the present champion than he has of a lightweight. Beating Kennedy means a lot to Ferguson and he is out to win.

Kennedy, however, has some ideas of his own on this subject and feels certain that he will take Ferguson's measure. The New York Heavy-weight is a big, clever chap of the Jim Corbett type and has ambitions just as great as Ferguson to become king of the heavies.

Al Delmont and Paddy Callahan of Brooklyn, New York, have the fans all guessing as to who is the better boy. It is one of those questions that only a meeting between them can settle and Tuesday night's affair will be one that New England fans have been waiting patiently for.

Young Donahue of Roxbury is in New York training with Bob Moah and sends word to his Roxbury friends that he will come back prepared to punch holes in Johnny Connolly. Eddie Mack, the manager of Connolly says that Donahue is very apt to meet with an unpleasant surprise. This match is at catch-weights and Connolly will show the same good form that he has against Kid Goodman, Peter Sullivan and Dave Deshler.

Jimmie Gardner looks like the real goods again having dispensed with considerable weight which he carried through the winter. The local followers of the game hope to see him in action in the near future.

THE MUSKETAQUID CLUB DANCE

In No. Billerica a Grand Success—Sketch of Organization

JAMES J. BRODERICK, General Manager.

The Musketaquid Canoe club, one of the most popular athletic clubs in this city, conducted a shirt waist party in Talbot hall, North Billerica last evening and despite the inclement weather it proved a grand success in every particular. The affair took the form of a trolley party, special cars conveying the guests from Lowell to the hall. The attendance was very large, attesting the wide popularity of the organization.

Upon the arrival of the guests at their destination they were received by an efficient reception committee and ushered upstairs and given seats. At 8.30 o'clock, Brederick's orchestra struck up a lively overture which was well received. Several other enjoyable selections were played and at 9 o'clock the floor was cleared for dancing.

One particularly enjoyable number was the "Musketaquid Special," in which all had the time of their lives. This was a new one but all quickly got acquainted and before long "everybody was doing it." Other features were introduced with grand success.

At 10.30 o'clock, there was a short intermission, during which refreshments were served. Following the lull, dancing was resumed and continued until midnight, when all voted the affair one of the best of the season. The return home on the specials was very pleasant, inasmuch as some of the talented members and friends, to the accompaniment of the orchestra, rendered many pleasing selections.

Those responsible for the success of the affair were: General manager, James J. Broderick; assistant general manager, Albert Carney; floor marshal, John W. Healey; assistant floor marshal, George Kirwin; chief aid, Harry Ohlson; aids, Walter Brown Harry Reelen, John Shanley, Nelson Depocher, Joseph McGann, Timothy Finnegan, Thomas Fitzgerald, Timothy Lynch and Fred McGuire.

Sketch of Club

The present Musketaquid Canoe club was organized in the woods on the banks of the Concord river, Sept. 23, 1907. At that time thirteen young men, residents of the Grove went for a canoe ride up the river. Upon reaching a secluded spot, all went to the shore. There, while talking over current events, one of the young men said that the old Musketaquid club was to dissolve, and the boys agreed to endeavor to secure the quarters of the club. This was done and the thirteen boys leased the cottage, which adjoins the Concord boat house. The lease was signed for four years and the following were elected as the first board of officers: president, John Healey; vice president, Fred McGuire, secretary, John Shanley and treasurer, James Broderick. The first year, under the efficient administration of the officers much progress was made. In the fall of the following year, 1908, a dancing party and social was held and it proved a grand success. A tidy sum was realized, with which furniture for the rooms was purchased and several improvements made. The first summer the Musketaquids established an enviable reputation as canoeists and swimmers and from the first were admired and respected by all other campers along the stream.

During the following two years dancing parties were conducted with excellent results and several socials were held at the camp. In 1910 two new members were initiated and the club continued to grow in power and importance and in Sept. 1911, when the lease on the quarters expired, the members decided to procure a home of their own. A committee was appointed to look up a suitable place. After a week's time the committee reported that the camp on the other side of the Concord boat house was available and it was unanimously agreed to buy the place. So in May, 1911, the cottage now occupied was purchased and completely remodelled. Since that time many improvements have been made and now the club is one of the best equipped on the banks of the river.

The rear of the clubhouse, faces Billerica street and the grounds are laid out very attractively. The building is one and a half stories high. It is surrounded by a piazza. On the first floor a well equipped gymnasium occupies one section, while the canoes, four in number, are stored in another part. There are also two large motor boats and these are stored underneath the front veranda.

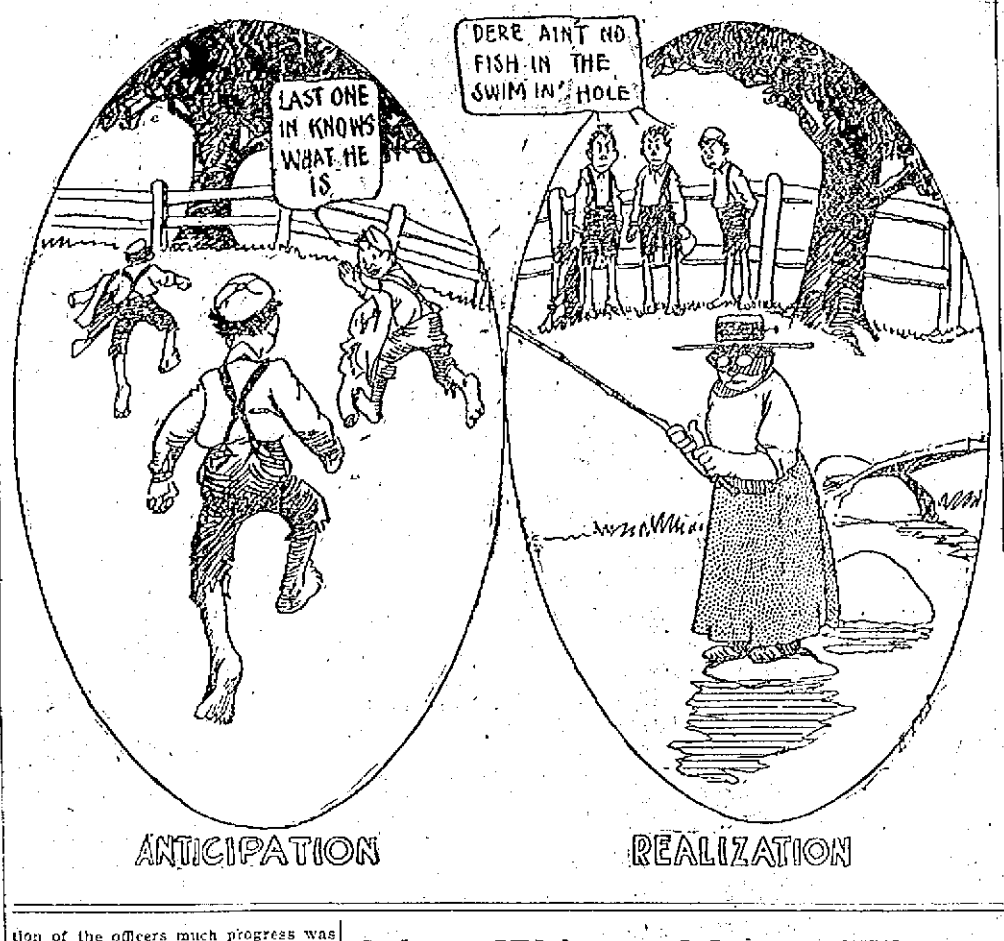

On the second floor there are two spacious rooms. One is used for recreation and it is well furnished. The furnishings include a piano, rustic cosy corner, parlor suite and everything else that goes to complete an up-to-date retiring apartment. The other is a reading room, supplied with literature of every description, and here many of the members assemble, even in the winter time to read and study different books.

A very pleasant feature of the club is the fact that the 13 charter members are still affiliated with the organization. The present officers are President, James Broderick; vice president, Albert Carney; secretary, John Healey and treasurer, Harry Ohlson.

LIFE'S DISAPPOINTMENTS

Cubans Welcome Marines, Who Will Aid in Quelling Rebellion

HAVANA, Cuba, May 25.—The general feeling in Cuba is that the arrival of the transport Prairie with 700 marines, who will be landed at Guantanamo, will have a quieting effect and will aid the government in putting down the negro rebellion that has been causing trouble in various provinces. General Jesus Monteagudo, the commander in chief of the Cuban army, is quoted as saying that the strength of the rebels has been greatly exaggerated, and he says that his troops and the rural guards will be able to cope with the disturbance. It is felt, however, that the landing of marines in several cities will convince the leaders of the insurrection that their cause is hopeless and that they will have to deal with Uncle Sam as well as the Cuban government.

WORK ON B. & M. SHOPS

blacksmith shops, which are located in section two. The piling work is very interesting and hundreds of people visit the premises every day to watch the operations of the experienced workmen. At the present time there are three pile drivers in operation and there is a fourth one on the land which has not as yet been raised. The capping of piles for the steel work where the locomotive shop is to be erected is progressing rapidly and within a short time the structural work will be started, there being many carloads of steel piers and beams which will soon be put in place.

The Wilson and English Construction Co., which has been doing the grading, expects to finish their work within a month. The McArthur Pile and Foundation company is looking after the piling and concrete foundation.

One of the attractions on the site is the big concrete mixer which is located in section two and operated by a big gang of employes who are kept busy all the time on the foundation work.

Narrow Gauge Cars

The narrow gauge cars are still in use, but before long they will be abandoned inasmuch as the Boston & Maine railroad had laid a special siding on the main line and two tracks going from the main line into the new location.

Naturally such a big industry means a big boom for the town, but Lowell will also share in the benefits for although there are several new buildings erected for the purpose of caring for the employes at the present time, when the shops have been erected and the hundreds of employes get to work, owing to the steam railroad and electric railway facilities, many of them make their homes in Lowell.

The house at the corner of High and Rogers streets, which was formerly occupied by the engineers for the Boston & Maine railroad, is now being used by the Wilson & English Construction Co., the Boston & Maine railroad engineers having transferred their quarters several hundred yards down High street, more adjacent to the land in section two.

Mrs. Georgianna Nadeau, of Worcester, has erected a house at the fork road near the corner of High and Rogers street and at the present time is boarding and lodging a number of the employes on the work. The building, which is supported by wooden piles, has a frontage of 64 feet and is 28 feet in depth. It has a low slanting roof, but proves to be a very comfortable boarding place. The entire first floor is devoted to the dining and cooking rooms, and several sleeping rooms. On the second floor there are sleeping rooms. The building was started last April and many improvements will be made before the car shops will have been completed.

The Boston & Maine railroad company in order to accommodate the public and prevent accidents has constructed an overhead bridge in Pond street. This is known as bridge No. 47 and was erected by the McHenry Bridge Co., it being the first bridge of this style ever used over the B. & M. tracks. It is well constructed and will be a great source of convenience to people in the locality.

Building Outlook

The work on the erection of the car shops has caused many land owners and syndicates to secure land in the vicinity of the works, especially on the east side, near the main railroad line, and the timber on the land has been removed and lots staked off. It is said that many of these lots have been sold, to persons who intend to erect buildings either for rental or for permanent use.

ONE OF THE BIG PILE DRIVERS AND THE CONCRETE MIXER.

The people of Billerica, it is presumed, are well acquainted with the site for the new car sheds and it might also be said that there are many people in Lowell and the vicinity who are also familiar with the locality, but it is worth one's time to take a view of the place and note the progress that has been made since ground has been broken. The nearest approach from Lowell is from High street in Billerica, the entrance to the land being but a short distance from the car line.

ANOTHER CHARGE

MAY BE MADE AGAINST MAN LIEUT. MAHER ARRESTED

John H. Garvey, of South Boston, who was arrested in Middlesex street yesterday morning while trying to dispose of railroad tickets and a punch, the property of the Boston & Maine railroad, on a warrant charging him with breaking and entering the railroad station at Wilmington, Mass., and larceny therefrom, will, when arraigned in court, have to answer to an additional charge of breaking and entering and larceny from the postoffice in the same town.

The man was arrested by Lieut. Martin Maher and the arrest is probably one of the most important made in several months, because the postal authorities have been looking for crooks who have been breaking into the postoffices in towns and accordingto a wire received in this city this morning the postoffice department intends to make a careful investigation of the different breaks.

A SPOT CASH CLEAN-UP!

This is what we made in New York when we visited the salesroom of the leading importers of the metropolis. We were surprised to see the large amount of millinery and accessories on the floor. We inquired of them relative to the stagnant condition of the market, and were told that this year's sales have been away below normal, and that they were facing a great loss unless they could immediately dispose of the lots on hand. Another fact which amused us very much was that instead of the importers making the price as heretofore they were very condescending, and asked us just what we would give for a part of the immense lot. We made a price under the agreement of giving SPOT CASH which we thought would be laughed at but our expectation was not fulfilled, as they accepted our offer very readily. We closed the deal with them, and immediately had the goods cased and shipped by express to our establishment in this city. TODAY WE WILL PLACE THIS CONSIGNMENT OF MILLINERY ON OUR TABLES. We will not devote any space to a lengthy description of the goods or prices. All we ask is that the ladies visit our store TODAY, inspect the goods and if they are not of the opinion that their quality is far superior to any ever offered in Lowell at prices double and triple those we are asking, we will not expect them to make a purchase. This clean-up saved us many hundred dollars on what the goods would have cost us had we been forced to pay market prices for them and we wish to share our profits with the women of Lowell by offering this opportunity of buying REAL SUMMER MILLINERY AT EARLY FALL PRICES.

THE average woman puts her formal evening gowns away with a sigh of relief at the beginning of summer, along with the dress suit of her better half, and gives herself up to the consideration of summery raiment; but as some one has remarked, "one-half the world never sleeps," and this statement, though made in another connection, might easily refer to the fashionable half which goes to bed in the wee sma' hours, even in midsummer and in the vacation part of the year. There is a breathing spell during May and June, which some of the fashionable folk spend in running across to Paris for a little shopping. Then begins the summer social season, quite as important in its way as the winter season in town, and more delightful because of the out-of-door entertainments and the slight letting up of extreme formality and ceremoniousness of town life.

July and August at Newport are very gay, indeed. The London season is over by then, and many titled and Honorable somebodies are visiting at the great Newport "Cottages" and taking part in the dinners, garden parties, balls and other festivities. Southampton and Bar Harbor are not far behind Newport in a whirl of gayeties, more or less formal, and later on, Lenox and Tuxedo have their brief, but important, social seasons. The woman who appears in society a great deal through the summer season, must naturally be provided with a number of evening gowns, for however she may move about on a round of country-house visits, the same people, also moving about, will be met again and again, and of course no fashionable woman cares to appear more than half a dozen times in the same gown. After that her maid disposes of it, and nobody knows better than the canny lady's maid just where good prices may be had for Madame's scarcely-worn finery.

Pannier Effects Noticeable in Evening Gowns.

The dancing and dinner gowns for summer wear are not as sumptuously elegant as were the winter gowns, heavy with velvets, brocades and gold lace, but they are exquisitely beautiful none the less, with their drapings of soft satin and chiffon; their flounces of costly lace and their clever color contrasts. What the photographer would call "contrasty" effects are all the rage now in Paris, and surprising combinations of fabrics are used with striking success. White lace gowns have panniers and trains of dead black, and black lace gowns are draped with white. Skirt draperies turn back to reveal facings of strongly-contrasting color, and vivid bows or flowers are added to demure gowns in daring manner. When managed by French skill these "contrasty" effects are interesting and pleasing, but woe be to the woman, whose dressmaker has a passion for following French ideals, but lacks the genius to carry them out.

A charming example of the Paris fagot for contrasts is shown in a gown by Agnes, which has a bodice and skirt of embroidered white chiffon over cream-colored Bohemian lace. At the back and sides of the waist-line starts a train of black charmeuse, which is draped up in pannier bunches below the hips, and falls in graceful folds and loops at the back, ending in a small train. Around the waist of this gown is a narrow belt of draped jade green velvet, with a flat bow of the green velvet against the black charmeuse at the back. Another "contrasty" gown, by Beer, has a white charmeuse coat to the knees, opening over a petticoat of shadow lace flounces. The front edges of the coat roll back and show a facing of black satin, and at the back these black satin coat tails are knotted together and lifted a bit above the trailing petticoat of lace. And here is the sharp touch of color: over the right knee—just where the coat begins to roll back and show its black reverse side—are two great, glowing American Beauty roses, put there by a stroke of the French genius that never makes a mistake. This gown is belted, over the white satin coat, by a black velvet belt clasped in front with a rhinestone buckle, and above the belt the coat is rounded out in a deep decolletage, and a tucker of shadow lace shows above.

Dolly Varden Evening Gowns of Flowered Silk.

Each of the French couturiers has brought out a Dolly Varden flowered gown, and though differing in particulars, all these gowns are alike in one respect—the pannier. A Dolly Varden costume without a pannier would be Hamlet with Hamlet left out, or something equally as disappointing; and, indeed, the pannier, quite as much as the flowered material, makes the costume worthy of its name. Pompadour silks and flowered taffetas in new and charming patterns have appeared like magic in the shops to make these Dolly Varden gowns, and as a quantity of the silk is required for the draped panniers, the folk who have been crying out against the small amount of material necessary nowadays should cheer up. By the way, has anybody heard of a tailor—during this era of narrow skirts and short coats—who has offered to make up a suit for less than his regular price because of the small amount of material required? But, of course, this has nothing to do with evening frocks, so back to Dolly Varden panniers!

A very dainty costume of this sort, by Francis, is illustrated. The bodice and panniers are in one, and suggest the old-fashioned sacque, worn over a stomacher and petticoat during the Eighteenth Century. The quaint little gown is made of Pompadour taffeta, with lilacs and roses in pastel tints on a white ground, and the pannier drapery is subdued to slender lines. The sleeves and fichu of lace and net make the gown very summery, and the color scheme is emphasized by a cluster of pale mauve roses at the corsage. With this Dolly Varden gown are worn, very properly, high-heeled Colonial slippers, and the picture hat of leghorn is faced with wistaria taffeta and trimmed with white plumes and black velvet streamers artistically knotted under the brim.

Odd Whims of French Couturiers.

While panniers are made to continue into trains, sashes by the same token become coat tails. A coat tail sash reaching to the bottom of the skirt is shown in a Cheruit evening gown of lace flouncing. The lace forms a pannier drapery over a petticoat also of lace, and there is a delightful little coat of cerise chiffon over the bodice and shoulder. At the back this bodice extends downward in a coat tail—or, one might say that the sash of cerise chiffon fell over the skirt in coat-tail effect. At any rate, the sash coat tail reaches to the floor over the lace pannier drapery, and a big, soft bow of taffeta holds sash end and lace drapery against the narrow skirt. Rhinestone embroidery on the cerise coat and sash, and a large rhinestone bowknot across the back of the waistline make this cerise and white costume very magnificent. Rhinestone trimming is a perfect craze in Paris, and the sparkling, thread-like lines of fiery rhinestones, edging delicate chiffon and lace draperies are wonderfully effective. The rhinestone band trimming is atrociously expensive—one must pay almost two dollars a yard for even a narrow band of the stones, set in imitation silver, and unless the trimming is handled with utmost care, the rhinestones drop out and the trimming is utterly spoiled. Chiffon and lace bodices appear to be held up over the shoulder with strings of rhinestones, and for some reason or other, even when the flesh is well covered with fabric the effect seems to be extremely decollete. Some of the new evening bodices are outrageous. They may pass in Paris, where modesty and conservative taste are not held in the same regard as over here, but one marvels that American women—granddaughters of stern old Puritan settlers in some cases—can wear such effects. Yet the extreme decolletage is the fashion, and the modestly cut bodice, with only a small square or V of throat showing, really looks prim and countrified nowadays. But the limit seems to have been reached in a French evening gown worn at the Comedie Francais recently—and in the audience, too. This gown had a trailing skirt of flesh-colored chiffon over pale pink charmeuse, and above the high waistline a bodice of pearl beads sewn on silver net. This bodice was worn directly over the skin, and strings of pearls held it over the shoulders.

Pearls Immensely Fashionable.

Never were pearls more in favor than they are now, and it is not necessary to own a fortune in real pearls to be in the mode. Handsome strings of imitation pearls are worn by many women who can well afford the real sort, and when the imitation is clever it is almost impossible to tell the difference—except by holding the pearls in the hand and testing the weight. Drecoll is using pearls a great deal this season, in trimming effects, and some superb Drecoll evening gowns have net tunics covered with looped strings of small pearls, in barbaric, but beautiful, effect. Pearl fringes and bands are used on dainty dancing frocks of light chiffon, and with white lace pearls are especially lovely.

Small silk roses are also used on the summer evening gowns, and these tiny roses are particularly pretty on debutante dancing gowns. A gown of this sort, made by Worth, has a white satin tunic over a petticoat of lace flounces, and the tunic appears to button down the back with tiny pink silk roses, while clusters of roses loop up the lace flounces on the skirt. Pink satin-buttoned boots with high heels are provided for this dainty dancing frock. Another adorable dancing frock of lavender chiffon has nine scalloped flounces on the skirt, each flounce edged with a tiny quilling of lavender taffeta. Clusters of violets are caught here and there among the scalloped flounces, and at the crossing of a draped fichu bodice. Many of the lace and net dancing frocks for midsummer evenings have three or more lace ruffles on the skirt, lifted at the left side and lapping over each other. Sometimes a festoon of roses runs from the lifted ruffles to the belt line to emphasize the lifted effect, though the ruffles are, of course, sloped upward on the skirt, which is not really lifted at all. At the foot, between the lapped edges of the lower ruffle the little slippered or booted foot shows plainly. High-heeled boots of satin, with crystal buttons, are affected by smart women for evening wear this season, and there are buttoned strap slippers, which come high over the instep in very chic effect. Silver slippers with pale silvery gray silk stockings, are more fashionable this year than the gold slippers and stockings worn last season. These silver slippers and stockings are worn with white and colored evening frocks alike.

The Apron a New Trimming Motif.

Rather domestic in suggestion is the apron of contrasting fabric, hanging at the front of a rich gown; but apron effects have crept in, and are undoubtedly the fad. The apron gown pictured is from Jeanne Lanvin, and is made of black thread lace over white charmeuse. The vest in the bodice, and apron hanging below, are of the white charmeuse and small crystal buttons go down the center of vest and apron.

One of the smaller illustrations shows a new theater cap, which looks for all the world like a bathing cap, so snugly does it fit down over the head and so little hair is visible under it. This cap is made of thin gold tissue, and at its edge there is a tiny pleating of Nattier blue taffeta to match its wearer's eyes. A bowknot made of small loops of silver braid sprawls over the front and top of the cap.

SUMMER MOURNING
Comfortable yet Correct

THERE is no reason why the woman in mourning should not be as comfortable in her black garb as her sister who revels in summery pastel tints. The days of stuffy bombazines and wool mourning fabrics have passed, and thin silks, crepes, dull finished black mohair and various cotton and silk weaves are at the command of the wearer of mourning. Black, at best, is a warm color to look at, and unfortunately the woman robed in mourning habiliments is often depressingly warm in suggestion on a broiling summer day; but there is no reason why she should be warm in reality, and she is likely to appear much more smartly dressed in her trim, thin black than others in crumpled linens or carelessly-fitting tub frocks.

Veil for a Young Widow, Draped in Modish Manner.

The wearer of mourning will wisely buy a few well-made things, of very best material rather than a quantity of cheaper clothes; for only the finest materials are distinguished in black; and it should always be kept in mind that mourning wear, because it may not make any appeal with charm of color, must be distinguished and elegant to be pleasing. There is no getting around the fact that it costs more to dress in mourning than in colors; but the mourning period is short, after all, and most women prefer to expend a little more at this time, taking excellent care of the few clothes purchased, than to go about looking frumpish or pitiable in cheap black.

There are certain conventions which must be observed, if one's mourning is to be correct. Be it remembered that mourning is not deep simply because it is woe-begone, but because of its adherence to the regulations that govern deep mourning. So long as it is built of proper materials and conforms to certain rules, first mourning may be unutterably "deep," yet at the same time quite perceptibly coquettish. The French have a knack of making mourning wear more full of grace and coquetry than even gaily colored raiment; and though the frivolity of French mourning offends the taste of women in real sorrow, there are many French mourning ideas which might be followed with profit by English and American women who, accepting the fact that they must "wear black" for a certain time, settle down to a year or two of dull, uninteresting garb of somber hue.

Crepe relieves the dead black of mourning fabrics and gives much smartness and distinction to the simplest gown. Crepe is very fashionable now, and is used all through the period of mourning, not only by the widow, but by those in mourning for parents, a brother or sister or a child. Blouses of chiffon or net trimmed with pipings of crepe are exceedingly smart, and are worn with two-piece suits of black cheviot or dull finished serge. Thin black China silk makes an ideal summer street frock for the woman in mourning, and such a frock, simply made, is illustrated. This frock has a three-flounce skirt and a simply cut bodice, with a little yoke of tucked net, outlined with dull jet trimming. The sleeve falls over a long undersleeve of tucked net. It is not considered correct in mourning to wear a frock minus a wrap in the street, and there are hosts of graceful scarf-wraps of chiffon, thin silk and crepe de chine, finished at the ends with tassels, that make simple mourning frocks very chic.

For house and evening wear there may be cool, thin frocks of chiffon, thin black silk, crepe de chine, dull black taffeta and black dotted swiss. Dull jet beads and trimming may be used with such frocks, but bright jet is not for mourning frocks. Tucks, hemstitching, pipings and buttons of the material or dull jet may be used, and by all means have tuckers, yokes and sleeves in these evening and house gowns of transparent net or chiffon. The Dutch neck is never worn out of doors by the woman in mourning. Only a tall, neatly boned stock collar will give the smart correctness necessary, and the collar must be tall enough and carefully enough fitted to the neck to prevent any suggestion of the loose or sloppy appearance which immediately makes mourning commonplace. If the stock and yoke are made of very transparent net or chiffon a double thickness of the material should be used, for anything approaching a decollete effect is in the worst of taste with a mourning costume.

The widow's veil is as interesting in its way—from a romantic standpoint—as the bride's veil, though one alas typifies a loss of the happiness that the other symbolizes! The widow's veil is thrown back after the first few months, but its graceful, voluminous folds envelop its wearer for a year at least. A perfectly draped veil and bonnet for the widow are pictured. The bonnet is slightly larger than an ordinary toque and is faced inside with white crepe.

White crepe neck fixings are becoming and fashionable, and are worn even in deep mourning. There are collars, cuffs, jabots and smart little neck bows of this white crepe and sometimes black crepe trimmings are added.

Boots and gloves are an important part of mourning dress. Patent leather, of course, is barred, and gun metal or dull calf footwear is substituted. With the street costumes dull calf buttoned boots, or boots having buttoned tops of twilled cloth are correct; or buttoned oxfords of dull calf may be worn if desired. With house and evening gowns, Colonial pumps with gun metal buckles, or buttoned boots of black suede will be correct. Dull black kid or suede gloves are required for formal occasions. Black silk gloves are allowable in hot weather, but gloves must always be worn out of doors with the mourning costume. Dull jet jewelry, or pearls, mounted in jet settings may accompany the mourning gowns, but all gold jewelry is under the ban. If a gold watch is carried it must be hidden out of sight. A string of pearls around the neck, however, is considered correct, and often lends grace to a black gown.

LIFE-SAVING DRILLS FOR FIREMEN

It pays to have firemen who can show athletic qualities betimes. An instance brought to public attention in Boston the other day proves this if any proof were necessary. A three-horse fire team became unmanageable and ran away; a tug being broken the animals were beyond the control of the driver. They headed straight for a group of children playing on a lawn and they were going at full speed. The children with one exception noticed the danger and escaped. One little tot stood as if bewildered, not knowing which way to move. A fireman on the rear of the big truck saw the danger, jumped and outstripped the horses in speed until he reached the child and grasping it by the clothing swung it aside when the front wheel was almost upon it and after it had barely escaped the horses hoofs. This stunt was highly creditable, and the man who thus saved the child's life should be rewarded either by promotion or by the humane society. Yet he did only what any fireman should do; but what few would be quick enough to accomplish.

The life of a fireman, especially the Lowell fireman, is not calculated to promote the muscular activity that would enable him to perform stunts such as that described or some even more dangerous in the work of life-saving at conflagrations. Let the best athlete in the country sit down quietly in one of our fire houses year in and year out as our firemen have to do and he would lose his activity; his muscles would become stiff and cramped up, and in a few years he would be unable to jump over a four-foot fence. The human body, like most other organisms, must grow and improve or else it will deteriorate. There is no such thing as preserving muscular activity without exercise, training and practice. The athletes and ball players are well aware of this. The same principle applies to the firemen of Lowell whose muscular activity, strength and in consequence their usefulness, are being reduced and deadened by inactivity and lack of proper exercise. Is it not practicable then to devise some form of regular drill and exercise that will enable these men to hold their strength and their agility for real emergencies in fire fighting? If they are to depend upon actual calls in response to alarms they will have but little to keep them in trim for the real ordeals in fire fighting. They should have frequent drills in the use of apparatus, in raising and ascending ladders, in using life-nets and scaling walls where the ladders cannot be used. We need in the fire department a corps of men who can do a number of stunts that will test the muscular ability and activity of all the men, so that when the chief reaches a fire and wants a man to do a perilous act he will know just who can do it and who cannot. At present the custom, we understand, is to call upon the man nearest the danger to do whatever may be required to save life or avert disaster. That particular man may lack the ability to do what is required of him while any one of half a dozen others on the scene may be able to do it with the greatest ease.

We should have life-saving squads made up of picked men from the department, and the work of this squad should be emulated by all the other men as a means of keeping up their preparedness for emergencies. We have been fortunate in not having any very bad fires of late; but that should not cause us to assume that we are not likely to have some, nor to allow our firemen to get out of practice. It is said that rust consumes iron faster than labor wears and similarly it may be said that inactivity, lack of exercise and proper attention to training will consume our elasticity of muscle, our strength and physical power. Hence to save our firemen from this form of deterioration, regular drills and some form of exercise calculated to preserve their strength and activity are indispensable.

THE RIVER ROAD

Governor Foss says he knows that the road between Lowell and Lawrence is in bad condition, having passed over it last fall in an auto. Let us assure the governor that it is in a much worse condition at the present time and that teaming over it is so dangerous that double the regular price is usually charged. The section of road to be finished is only about half a mile in length, and that is what the county and state highway commissions have been fighting over for the past year. The people of Lowell and Lawrence have been too passive in this matter. They are not in a mood to put up with any further imposition or neglect. Had the county and state highway appropriations been properly expended this road would have been completed long ago. It would be an outrage to cause any further delay.

MORE STRIKE TALK

Any clique, union, nationality or agitator who agitates a general mill strike for a mere trifle at this time will be set down as an enemy of our city and will receive no public sympathy. If a few operatives cannot get things to suit them at any particular mill the wisest course is to seek employment elsewhere, not to agitate for a general strike. It is well known that there are paid agitators in town whose business is to harass the mills in every way possible by causing strikes for little or no cause. If strikes and labor troubles are continuous their salaries go right on, not otherwise. Moreover these paid agitators get five or six times the wages of the ordinary mill operative.

It is stated that Roosevelt votes in Ohio cost three dollars a piece and Taft votes half that amount. That may explain why the Taft votes were not more numerous.

The Greeks who won the applause of the community in the recent strike should not throw away their reputation for independence.

Business is good throughout the city and will remain so unless some labor trouble comes up to tie up some of our industries.

And Tom Lawson for senator. General Coxey will probably be next to announce his candidacy.

Col. Roosevelt may not use intoxicants but that does not prove that he is a temperate man.

Seen and Heard

Who does not relish the smoky-toned and prim sampler of the eighteenth century, wrought by some little maid of ten, who has now been dead these many years but whose painfully neat needle-work survives to tell her name, the date, and her misguided taste in 18th century religious doggerel, with the letters of the alphabet, and possibly a border of flowers, with an occasional cat, dog, or parrot in the corner? The degree of art in these ingenious effusions is various, but their appeal does not wholly depend on this. They are familiar voices from a not too remote past, the past of our grandmothers and great-grandmothers, reminding us that they were once demure little girls.

Almost all of them were adorned with verses or mottoes of a solemn, and sometimes even lugubrious tenor, as, for instance, the one beginning:

Ann Jordan is my name.
English is my nation;
Scituate is my native place
And Christ is my salvation.

Another very affecting piece of pictorial allegory is the silk-embroidered sampler, on which is depicted a scene in a cemetery, with the two mortuary monuments of strange design, two very high-waisted women mourners standing nearby, and weeping willow of the most weepy description at the right. The singularly pessimistic tone of the most of the sampler literature reminds one of the wonderful child genius described by Mark Twain in his "Life on the Mississippi," whose poetry was so dismal and gloomy that it plunged the whole neighborhood into an ecstasy of melancholy, says the Boston Transcript.

TO A HORSE CHESTNUT TREE

The following beautiful lines to a horse chestnut tree on a humble street are written by our old friend J. Carpenter:

For many years I've watched
You bud and leaf and blow,
Nor failed each spring to see
Your blossoms white as snow.

Not here does wild-bird come,
To sing and build its nest;
The bee doth scarcely know
Thee in his zealous quest.

Yet children come and play
Beneath thy ample shade,
Waiting impatiently
Until thy nuts are made.

Old friend, if you but stood
Upon a hill's high crest
Or where the world could see
Your beauty would show best.

Still, in this quiet street,
Dark, dusty and unknown
Amongst the sombre elms
Thou'st queen upon her throne!

Who planted thee and nursed
Thy tender years? Did he
Survive to see thee grow
To thy maturity?

Or does he dwell where blooms
Celestial trees—where swells
The groves with melody
Sweeter than Israfel's!

Yet lives he in the heart
Of one who, loving, lays
The wreaths of memory
And the palms of praise.

Who was he? Know but this:
That, one day, long ago
Some good kind soul did plant
This tree and watched it grow.

RARE BOOKS RUINED

Water Destroyed Lawson's Collection

BOSTON, May 25.—Thomas W. Lawson lost $15,000 in rare books yesterday as the result of a break in the water pipe in Young's hotel, where he has offices. The books were collected by Mr. Lawson in various foreign countries which he visited, and some of them cannot be replaced.

The water break was discovered by the watchman of the hotel, who notified Manager Gallagher. Upon the arrival of Mr. Lawson he was told of the affair, and while he regretted it very much, told Mr. Gallagher that "it will be all right in a short time."

The offices of Mr. Lawson are located on the third floor of the hotel, facing Court street. Some of the books damaged by the water were bound in London by a famous binder and cost a considerable amount of money and were highly prized by Mr. Lawson.

Mr. Lawson carried no insurance against damage by water, but carries an insurance of more than $100,000 against fire.

The hotel suffered no damage beyond the wetting of the carpet in the office.

DOCTORS GAVE HER UP

Mrs. Stuart Finally Saved By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Her Story Interesting.

Elmo, Mo.—"I think your Vegetable Compound is wonderful for it has helped me. I had four doctors and they said I had female troubles and a tumor and nothing but an operation would help me. I could not sit still long enough to eat, and could sleep hardly any I was in so much misery with pains in my side and back.

"A year ago last spring my doctor gave me up, and he was surprised to see me this spring and to see my condition. I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the praise wherever I go for I know I would not be here today or have our fine baby boy if I had not taken it." —Mrs. Sarah J. Stuart, R.F.D. No. 2, Box 16, Elmo, Mo.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

We challenge anyone to name even one other medicine that has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

$1,000,000 GIVEN FOR EDUCATION

Colleges Must Raise an Equal Sum

NEW YORK, May 25.—Nearly $1,000,000 was contributed to the cause of education by the general education board founded by John D. Rockefeller at its meeting here yesterday.

Of this sum, $750,000 was appropriated for distribution among five colleges, the largest contribution of $250,000 going to the George Peabody college for Teachers at Nashville, Tenn., for the establishment of the Seaman A. Knapp School of Country Life.

The other colleges awarded appropriations are:

Beloit college, Beloit, Wis., $100,000; Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Ia., $100,000; McAlester college, St. Paul, Minn., $50,000; University of Rochester, Rochester, N. Y., $200,000.

It is explained that the gifts to the colleges mentioned are all conditional upon an equal sum being raised by the respective institutions.

Aside from the college appropriations the sum of $210,100 was set aside for demonstration work in agriculture in the southern states; for professors of secondary education in state universities of the south, and to aid the work of negro education in the south. The demonstration work appropriation is $133,000.

The miscellaneous appropriations were:

For professors of secondary education in the several state universities of the southern states, $23,100.

For the supervision of negro rural schools in Kentucky, North Carolina and Virginia, $9000.

To three negro schools—Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va.; Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala., and the Spelman seminary of Atlanta, Ga., the sum of $35,000.

LAUDS CATHOLIC CHURCH

Rev. Dr. Jones Says it is Doing Great Work

BOSTON, May 25.—The Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, D. D., author and leader of the Abraham Lincoln Centre work in Chicago, created a stir at the afternoon session of the Free Religion association yesterday in Ford hall, when he rallied to the defence of th Catholic church.

He declared that there was no danger of the Catholic church dominating the American government, and added: "I would rather see a Catholic priest a political boss than a grafting Protestant."

The Rev. Dr. Charles Fleischer, leader of the Sunday commons, and Chas. D. Wendte, foreign secretary of the Unitarian Fellowship, had made charges against the Catholic church, saying at the morning meeting that Catholicism is un-American and threatens the union and integrity of the United States. Dr. Jones' remarks in the afternoon came as a surprise.

"The Catholic church," said he, "is a mighty power, coming down century after century, and has done and is doing a wonderful work of uplifting humanity. I ask that the Free Religious association consider this church with the other denominations. The Catholic church is helping to digest the immigrants and put them on a proper plane, and so long as the Catholic church meets the immigrants as they enter Castle Island I do not worry about the future of these new citizens to come.

FOUR ARRESTED

THEY ARE CHARGED WITH VIOLATING MEAT INSPECTION LAW

BOSTON, May 25.—Four market men were arrested yesterday on complaint of the pure food inspectors, charged with violating the meat inspection laws.

The defendants are Joseph Filone, Pendicas Themo, Charles Johnson and George Dosse, former members of the Boston Meat Market and Provision company. They are charged with shipping lamb, hamburger steak and provisions to Gomez & Co. at Manchester, N. H., that had not been inspected, although it was stamped with a trade label marked, "United States Inspected and Passed." The meat was seized at the North station before it was shipped to Manchester.

This is the first arrest for an offence of this kind in Boston. Other arrests are expected to follow, as an effort is being made to enforce the meat inspection regulations strictly.

All four defendants pleaded not guilty when arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes. Pending a hearing on May 25, they were permitted to go on their personal recognizance in the sum of $500 bail.

WOMAN RESCUED

SHE WAS TAKEN FROM A BURNING BUILDING

BOSTON, May 25—Miss Ethel Kammerer was rescued from her home, 230 Pearl street, Somerville, yesterday, during a fire that caused a damage of $300. Miss Kammerer was ill in the house and her mother went to the attic. She heard her daughter calling and left in the attic a burning candle. The candle overturned and set fire to the house. It burned fiercely through the roof. Miss Kammerer was taken out by her mother and the firemen and resisted to the house of a neighbor, where she collapsed.

THE BACHELOR GIRLS SCORED BIG SUCCESS

In Song Revue at Asso. Hall Last Night

Associate hall was crowded to the doors last evening and all present greatly enjoyed the performance of the M. T. I. Bachelor Girls in their novelty song revue. The girls gave the performance about one month ago and scored a tremendous success and the requests for a repetition were so numerous that the managers decided to give it a second time. While the people in last night's show were the same as those participating in the former performance, the songs were all new and the soloists were obliged to respond to a number of encores.

The stage presented a beautiful sight. It represented a steamer and was one of the prettiest stage settings ever seen at an amateur show. The girls were prettily attired in light dresses and during the show a spot light was operated that added greatly to the picturesqueness of the surroundings.

The entertainment opened with an overture by Gilmore's orchestra, under the direction of William T. Gilmore, who also had charge of the show. The following program was then given: Opening chorus, M. T. I. Bachelor Girls; special number by quartet, "Down by the Old Mill Stream," Misses Boland, Buckley, Bonin, Nolan; "Dreaming of the Girl I Love," Miss Alice Bonin; "Andy," Miss Marion Nolan; "A Little Something, That's All," Miss Jennie Wynn; pony ballet, Misses King, McPherson, Cawley, Hurley, Buckley, Bolan, Connolly, Reardon; "I Want to Be in Dixie," Miss Madeline Boland; "I'll Dream of You If You'll Dream of Me," Miss Mae Carroll; sailor's hornpipe, special feature, Miss Esther Clancy; "That Gaby Glide," Miss Alice Mealey; grand finale, "Meet Me Tonight," Miss Elanor Buckley.

Each number was cleverly given and the soloists were the recipients of enthusiastic applause. At the close of the show the Bachelor girls were warmly congratulated for their excellent work as was also William T. Gilmore, director, and James F. Rourke, organizer of the troupe.

After the entertainment, the floor was cleared for dancing and an order of 16 numbers was enjoyed, music being furnished by Gilmore's orchestra.

The committee in charge of the entertainment was as follows: General manager, James J. Gallagher; floor marshal, George R. O'Neil; committee on arrangements, George F. Briggan, John E. O'Neil, Patrick H. Crowley, Henry J. Burrington, Peter F. Brady, Bernard A. Connors, Walter T. Powers, John T. Guthrie, James F. Rourke; aids, M. T. I. Bachelor Girls.

WEEP AND YOU WEEP ALONE

INSTRUCTIONS FROM THE BOSS.

"Helen, what does that young man who called last night do?"
"He's a baseball player, father."
"Well, tell him to cut out his squeeze plays when he comes up here."

Prepared for 'Em.

WE'VE had the porch painted and screened in, too,
The thinnest mosquito can never squeeze through;
We have bought a new hammock, Flo's schooldays are gone—
Now let the warm nights and the fellows come on.

SHE has just graduated—I'm speaking of Sis,
And she's busy expecting a season of bliss;
The hammock was made to accommodate two,
And the fringe on the edges is yellow and blue.

SHE'S through with her studies, her troubles are past;
Besides having beauty her knowledge is vast;
Her hats and her dresses cost father a lot,
But don't think we're kicking, because we are not.

WE'VE had the porch painted, the hammock is hung,
Ma says that once only a girl can be young;
She's a peach, sister is, and as trim as a fawn—
Now let the warm evenings and fellows come on.

CLEVER MANAGEMENT.

Mrs. Swift—Mrs. Wise is such a clever manager.
Mrs. Smith—Is she?
Mrs. Swift—Yes. Her husband gave her the money to get their two daughters graduating dresses, and she bought herself a lovely gown with it.

Bluffing Jackson.

DIDN'T I see you on this car the other day?" he asked of the man who was smoking with him.

"Shouldn't wonder," was the reply.

"Didn't we talk about election?"

"Very likely."

"Didn't I ask you who you were going to bet on?"

"Yes."

"And your idea was that it was too early to place any bets yet?"

"Yes, I remember."

"And I told you that there was a feller named Tom Jackson, who was bluffing the life out of me for a bet, and that I'd rather go a block around than meet him?"

"I think you said so."

"And I entreated you, sir, to give me a tip on a safe bet?"

"Yes."

"And you told me to hit Tom Jackson's trail with a ten-dollar bill and run him down, and shake the bill under his nose and offer to bet two to one that—that—"

"I have forgotten."

"Well, I haven't. I hit his trail and run him to his hole and shook that bill at him and offered to bet that the Judgment Day wouldn't be along for 75 years yet, and great Scotts—!"

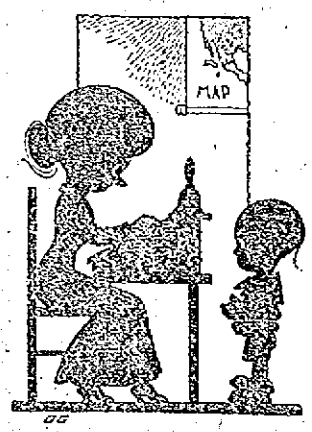

"What?"

"It was just as you said it would be. He hemmed and hawed and swallowed the bluff and shut right up, and I don't believe anybody in town can get a ten-cent bet out of him for a year to come. Complete wilt, sir, and now he's going a block out of his way, and I'm as bold as a lion, and I thank you and hope to do as much for you sometime."

A CASE OF CONSCIENCE.

I DID a kind o' mean thing comin' in today," said the Long Island farmer when the six dozen eggs had been counted out to the grocer.

"You don't look like that sort of a man," was replied.

"Oh, I reckon I've got my mean streaks, same as the rest. I was drivin' by them golf grounds, and I seen a feller knockin' the balls from hole to hole."

"Yes?"

"It made me sorter mad, and I hitched my team and climbed the fence and said to the feller:

"'Strikes me that this is a durned silly business for a grown man.'

"'I've thought that way myself sometimes,' he replied.

"'Jest knocking balls around.'

"'That's all.'

"'Better be home splittin' wood.'

"I thought he might say something mean back to me, but he didn't. He give one of the balls a swipe and then throwed down his mallet and bust into tears."

"You don't say!" exclaimed the grocer.

"Yes, I did, busted right into tears and looked up at me and said:

"'I hain't got any home!'

"'What's the matter?'

"'I'm an orphan.'

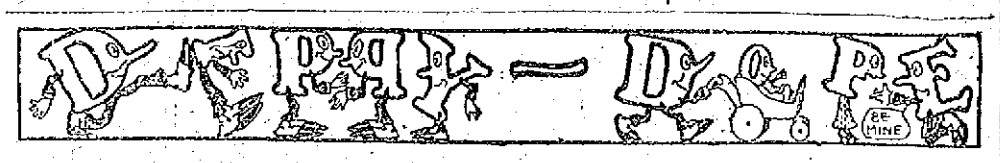

"'Wall, split wood for somebody else, then.'

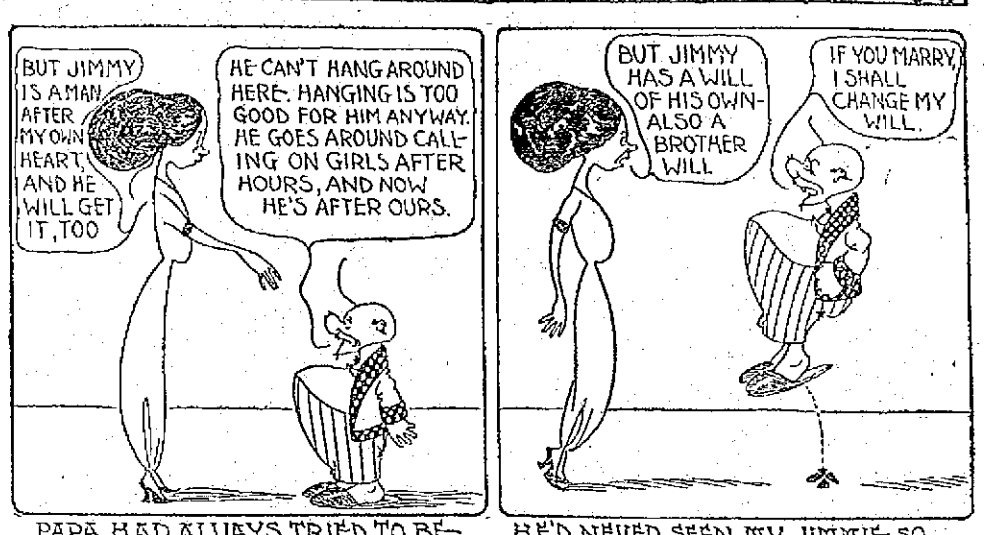

"'Hain't got no ax.'

"'I might lend ye one.'

"'But it would bring on another hemorrhage of the lungs.'

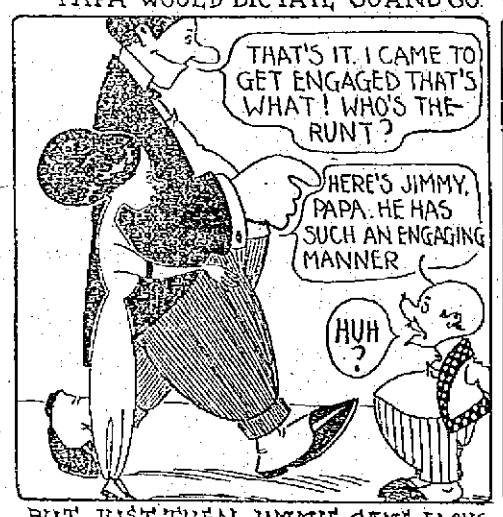

"Wall, there he was, said the farmer—"a dyin' orphan out knockin' the balls around to save his life a leetle longer, and I climbin' the fence to abuse him! Darn mean of me, and I own right up, and if he's there when I go back I'm goin' to offer him a paper of smokin' tobacco and tell him he'd better come along and die at my house instead of under some straw-stack."

Kitty—He had plenty of lights but he had them all turned around and focused on himself.

THE DAY'S FABLE.

IT having been announced to the Birds and Beasts that a new ruler over them was to be elected, there was great commotion. The Eagle, the Buffalo, the Peacock, the Bear and the Wolf went about saying that they did not seek the position, but that if it was offered them on a triple-plated spoon they would feel it a duty to accept, but after a time the race settled down between two Lions.

The Birds and Beasts had had a good opinion of both, but it soon leaked out that one had done this and the other that, and that neither was all-wool and a yard wide. Then the Lions themselves went about to tell of each other's unfitness, and to crack up their own virtues, and in despair of what to do the electors sent a deputation to the Owl to say:

"O, Bird that hast never bought a gold brick, how doth this thing look to thee? Call up all thy wisdom and give us some straight talk."

"Um!" replied the Owl, as he rolled his eyes upward. "As I understand it, there are two lions in the field?"

"Sure, Mike."

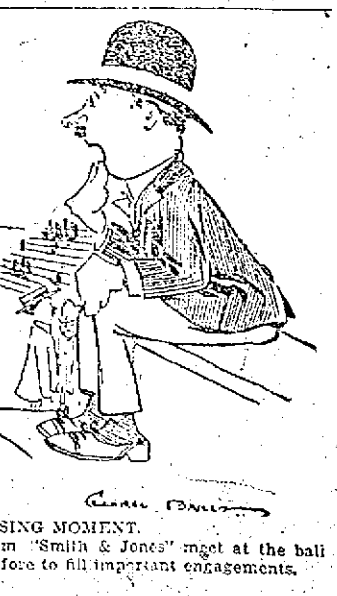

"And the electors are not exactly satisfied with either?"

"That is the case."

"Then why not stampede from both and take me!"

CONTRACT IS AWARDED FOR CHALIFOUX BUILDING

A Very Busy Season Faces the Builders—New Houses To be Erected

The contract for the excavation and foundation of the new Chalifoux building in Merrimack street to be erected on the site of the old wooden one formerly occupied by A. E. O'Heir and George F. Fairburn, was awarded to the R. H. Reaves Construction company which is erecting the new Sun building. The plans for the new building are now being drawn by Derby, Robinson and Shepherd of Boston and it is expected they will be finished soon.

The plans call for a six-story building, but Mr. Paul Chalifoux stated this morning that only four of the stories will be finished for the present. The work of tearing down the old building is nearly completed and according to the contract the foundations will be ready by July 1st. When the other two stories are put on, the cornice line of the new building will be even with that of the Colonial building. As the plans for the building are not complete yet, the other contracts have not as yet been given out.

Swimming Pool

Work on the new swimming pool and gymnasium at the Rogers Hall school in Rogers street which is being done by Contractor Charles Whittet, is progressing rapidly. The outside of the brick building is nearly finished and the roofers are now busily engaged in setting the slate roof. In ten days it is expected the men will be shifted on the inside work of the building and by July it is presumed the edifice will be finished and equipped.

New Theatre

If plans are carried as formulated, Lowell will add another theatre to its already long list, and the new one will be situated in Merrimack street on the site of the Tremont house. The plans are now being drawn by Architect Harry Prescott Graves and they call for a four-story building of limestone. The building will extend from Merrimack to Market street, the first floor in the rear of the edifice to be used as a vaudeville theatre. On the first floor also will be stores, some in Merrimack and others in Market street. The theatre will occupy about 1400 feet of floor space. The second floor will be composed of offices, while the other floors will be constructed in tenements. The tearing down of the old Tremont house it is expected will be started in a very short time.

New Houses

Contractor Genest has started work on two two-tenement houses in Highland avenue and has just completed two double houses and a cottage in Forrest street. Avila Sawyer will start Monday the construction of a three-story apartment house in Dracut street. Next week he will also complete a double house and two cottages in Parker street. Paul Vigeant is soon to start work on a six-apartment house at 14-16 Dodge street. The structure will be built of cement blocks and will be three stories high, each apartment to have five rooms. Charles B. Winters has started work on a dwelling house of six rooms in Florence avenue, the estimated cost being $3000.

Y. M. C. A. FIELD DAY

On Saturday, June 1st, a field day will be held at Washington park, Lowell, open to members and friends of the Lowell Young Men's Christian association. This will mark the formal opening of the park as the athletic field and baseball grounds for the association members for the season.

A full program has been scheduled for June 1st, beginning at 1.30 p. m. and continuing until 9.30 in the evening. The band of thirty pieces from the Middlesex county school at North Chelmsford will furnish the music. There will be athletic and gymnastic demonstrations and a number of competitive track and field events. The marathon and the comedy races will be especially interesting.

There will be a baseball game between the Y. M. C. A. team and one of the local nines. Baseball events such as circling the bases for time, bunting to first base, accurate throwing, distance throwing and fungo hitting will also be interesting to lovers of this sport.

A military exhibition is promised, also boy scout maneuvers and a boys' model airship show and aviation meet.

Other special features in the afternoon and early evening will be the special gymnasium apparatus work and the midway.

The evening program beginning at 7.45 will be especially enjoyable, Mr. Walter Muzzey and Mr. Theodore Pearson being in charge.

Refreshments will be served by a committee from the Women's auxiliary. The admission fee of 15 cents for adults and 10 cents for children covers both the afternoon and evening program.

How to be Beautiful

(Parisienne" in Woman's Realm)

"To have a clear, soft and velvety complexion, massage the face, neck and arms daily with a solution made by dissolving an original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch hazel. It prevents facial blemishes and makes the skin lovely, smooth and fair.

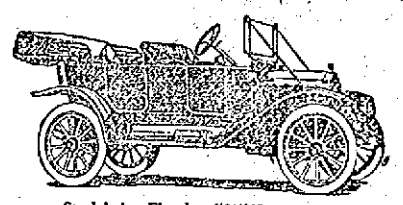

"A dry shampoo is better than washing the head, and there is no danger of catching cold. Mix four ounces of powdered orris root with an original package of therox, sprinkle a little on the head and brush it out well. It refreshes the scalp and makes the hair clean, light, wavy and lustrous.

"Hairs on the face mar a woman's beauty. They will vanish quickly if delatone paste is applied. Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the hairs; apply and permit to remain two or three minutes; then rub off, wash the skin, and the hairs will be gone.

"For sores, skin eruptions, pimples, eczema and similar beauty destroyers, try Mother's Salve. It heals cuts, burns, scalds without leaving a scar, and is recommended for obstinate sores."

To the Honorable the Municipal Council of the City of Lowell:

Respectfully represents your petitioner the Bay State Street Railway Company, a corporation duly established under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and doing business in the City of Lowell, that by the terms of grant of location in Pawtucket street and in Bridge street in said City of Lowell, the space between the inner rails of the two tracks is fixed at not less than three feet six inches, nor more than four feet, and that public convenience and necessity require that such space should be fixed at four feet six inches, and a greater distance at connecting and other curves; also that it desires certain alterations, relocations and extensions of locations of its tracks in said City of Lowell and that public convenience and necessity require the same.

Wherefore it respectfully petitions your Honorable Council as follows: That the requirements as to Pawtucket and Bridge streets be changed so that the space between the inner rails of the two tracks shall be four feet six inches, with such additional width in connecting and other curves as safety may require, and to the satisfaction of the city engineer and superintendent of streets and approval of the board of railroad commissioners.

Also to relocate its tracks on Pine street, from Liberty street to Stevens street, and to construct a turnout between Wilder and Stevens streets on Pine street; to extend its present turnout on Church street one hundred feet easterly; and to relocate its present turnout on Lawrence street, near Watson street, at a point about 300 feet southerly from its present location, together with such switches, curves and cross connections as may be necessary or convenient for the operation of the cars of said company, and all substantially as shown on plans to be filed for the hearing to be held hereon.

And to erect, place, maintain and use such poles, wires and other appliances as are usual and necessary in the overhead trolley system of street car propulsion and to propel cars by such system over the said tracks with electricity as the motive power, or to use such other motive power as the laws of this commonwealth permit and the municipal council shall from time to time approve, and to make such underground and surface alterations in the ways through which these alterations, relocations and extensions of locations are granted as may be necessary.

PENTECOST SUNDAY TO BE OBSERVED

Tomorrow—First Communion at Immaculate

Tomorrow in the Catholic churches the feast of Pentecost will be observed by special masses and sermons.

At St. Anthony's church Rt. Rev. Bishop De Silva will celebrate a solemn pontifical high mass. The members of the parish will form a procession in Union street and march through Chapel street to the church. The procession will be led by the Lithuanian band, reaching the church about 10.30 o'clock when the service will begin.

Tomorrow will be a great day at the Immaculate Conception church as a large number of children will make their first communion at the early mass to be celebrated by Rev. Fr. Sullivan, while Rev. Fr. Tighe and Rev. Fr. McQuaid who prepared the children, will give the communion. A solemn high mass will be celebrated at 11 o'clock in observance of the feast of Pentecost. There will be a procession in the evening made up of the first communion children, the Children of Mary and the Immaculate Conception sodality.

Next Friday the forty hours' devotion will open at the Immaculate Conception church with a solemn high mass and will close on Trinity Sunday following.

Sacred Heart Church

On next Wednesday evening in the Sacred Heart school hall the members of the Children of Mary sodality will give an entertainment and dance. As this will be the last dancing party of the season, the members plan to make it one to be long remembered.

At the 8.30 o'clock mass at the Sacred Heart church tomorrow a large class of children will receive first communion. A special musical program has been arranged for the occasion. After mass the communicants will march to the school hall where breakfast will be served by the members of the Holy Rosary sodality.

St. Margaret's

The general committee of men of St. Margaret's parish, organized to conduct a field day or lawn party in aid of the parish will hold a meeting tomorrow evening when a report will be submitted by the sub-committee appointed at the last meeting. It is understood that the sub committee will report favorably on the plan

St. John's, North Chelmsford

The service of the forty hours devotions will open at the 9.30 o'clock mass at St. John's church on Sunday, June 12. The first communion service will also be held at the mass and a large number of children will receive the sacrament. The children are in charge of the sisters of the Notre Dame.

The cadets of St. John's are holding weekly open air drill in the rear of the church and the manner in which they are acquainted with the many movements speaks well for their instructor and themselves.

Their First Communion

Tomorrow morning at the 7.30 o'clock mass at the Immaculate Conception church one hundred and fifty children will approach the holy table and receive their first holy communion. During the past month they have received instructions for the great event and the final lessons were given yesterday afternoon. The children will first assemble in the school hall at 7 o'clock and will march in twos to the church where seats in the centre aisle will be reserved for them. A special musical program will be given and the altars will be decorated in honor of the occasion.

The list of children to receive communion tomorrow is as follows:

The basement of the Immaculate Conception church which for the past three months has been closed, undergoing extensive repairs will soon be ready for occupancy. The work is practically completed and but for a few finishing touches it might at any time be opened. The place at the present time is very beautiful and when finished will be one of the prettiest church basements in this vicinity. A feature of the improvements is the fact that everything was done by local men. The architectural work was done by Henry Rourke, the painting by Dwyer, the tile floor by American Safety Tread company, gas and electrical fitting by H. R. Barker company.

Rev. Dennis A. Sullivan, O. M. I., of the Immaculate Conception church will leave Lowell next week for New London, Conn., where he will preach a two weeks' mission at St. Joseph's church. The mission will open June 2 and close June 16. Fr. Sullivan will be assisted by Rev. James McDermott, O. M. I., of the Sacred Heart church.

The character party of the Young Men's Catholic Institute will be held in Associate hall next Wednesday evening.

Owing to the fact that Rev. Fr. Sullivan, spiritual director of the O. M. I. Cadets is to leave this city, the military mass of the cadets has been postponed to the latter part of June. The cadets will meet in regular session next Wednesday evening and arrangements will be made for their annual encampment.

The annual communion Sunday of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will be held at the Immaculate Conception church tomorrow. The members of all the divisions will assemble in their hall at 7 o'clock and will wear their regalia with white gloves and will then march to the church and attend the 7.30 o'clock mass. This time honored custom is embodied in the constitution of the order and it is also the wish of the national officers, hence it is expected that all will be present.

Mrs. Roberts gave great pleasure in her group of songs, all of which she sang with fine voice and excellent expression. Mr. Andreoli, the violinist, also made a favorable impression in his solos, which he played in a faultless manner.

It is pleasant to note the great progress Miss Reilly has made in the teaching profession and the thoroughness displayed by the pupils in last evening's recital shows that besides being a talented and brilliant player herself, she has the faculty of imparting to others the ability to play the masterpieces of the old composers with beauty, grace and ease.

LAWNDALE FARM

OLD NASHUA ROAD, TYNGSBORO, MASS.

With its 90 acres of fine rich cultivated land, the farm house of 10 rooms, engine house, carriage house 32x40, barn 120x38, lodge, hennery, pig house, and the beautiful waving fields of green, the product of which will be harvested in the near future; all pledged to the highest bidder at public auction, in one lot, regardless of any condition of the weather.

Mr. Murphy, the present owner of the premises, is determined in disposing of this fine parcel of property. He is fully cognizant of the sacrifice he is making in such disposition, but the death of his wife a short time ago causes his act.

THE PLACE:

Situated on the east bank of the Merrimack, affording a most splendid view of the winding river and surrounding country, as the elevation (here where the buildings set) is about 100 feet above the river's surface; together with its vast acreage of newly seeded ground rich in its fertility and producing some of the best English hay grown around these parts. The 30 or more full grown pines bordering the intervale opposite the homestead, lending their natural, unrestricted beauty; the facilities for city conveniences, its distance of but one mile to Tyngsboro village, with two state roads and car line, and but five minutes' walk to the Lowell and Nashua car line on the east side, giving it the desired exclusiveness and accommodation, and in all making it one of the best farm properties that will be offered at public competition this season.

THE BUILDINGS:

The house consists of 10 large rooms with good cellar and adjoining shed.

The barn, 120x38, thoroughly constructed, with extra heavy timbers, contains 30 box stalls and is equipped with hay carrier which runs on trolley and deposits the load to any part of loft, where the storage for hay is almost unlimited. The foundation is mostly of granite and encloses a postless basement for the breeding and care of hogs. This building winters many horses during the season and is adjoined by a fine paddock.

The carriage house will accommodate eight or ten carriages, the basement of which is used as a tool house.

The lodge, which sets on the west side of the road, consists of two rooms, one all sheathed in Carolina pine, has hardwood floor, fine brick fireplace, and a wide piazza on the north and west sides.

The engine house supplies the buildings with running well water at 50 pounds pressure, a 1000-gallon tank being installed in the basement of the dwelling house.

The hennery consists of four hen houses and yards all wired in.

The land consists of about ninety acres, about thirty of which is woodland, the remainder of which any part can be ploughed with a sulky plough, and has cut as high as 100 tons of hay a season. That part of the land which sets on the east side of the Old Nashua road has a frontage on the road of almost one half a mile. The intervale which consists of 10 acres is situated on the opposite side of the road and runs to the river.

The location, as stated above, is a most desirable one, with easy access to all points, situated half-way between Lowell and Nashua with the state road to either place but a mile away.

PERSONAL PROPERTY:

Immediately after selling the farm, the following personal property will be disposed of:

One black horse, 10 years old, weighs about 1600 lbs., works single or double; one bay mare, 4 years old. This mare is an extra fine roadster, will road 12 miles an hour and has fine stable manners; one French coach stallion, by Kasbath. He will be 3 years old in September, is brown in color, and has never been broken to harness; one calico horse, weighs about 1200 lbs.; 2 sets of heavy team harness; one single express harness; one extra fine Cummings' farm wagon, with side boards and hay rack; one express wagon; one wood wagon, two or three horse hitch; one large hay wagon; 3 extra fine sleds, 2 with side boards; 1 two-horse dumpcart; 1 Kimball Rockaway, leather lined; 2 light Concords, one heavy Concord; one Deering 2-horse mowing machine; one Eclipse corn planter; one Osborn disc harrow; one Keystone hay loader, windrow or swath; one Deering tedder; one Kemp manure spreader; one Sulky plough; 1 two-horse iron land roller; one American seeder; one blacksmith forge, anvil and tools; one wind rower, and one clover cutter.

Terms of sale: $500 will be required and must be paid to the auctioneer by the purchaser as soon as the real property is struck off. On personal property the terms will be cash, and must be paid for on day of sale.

The nearest way of approach from either Lowell or Nashua is to take the Lowell and Nashua line of electrics, get off at Johnson's corner at Tyngsboro, and this property is but a five minutes' walk.

Make all inquiries of the auctioneer, Charles F. Keyes, Green street, Lowell, Mass. Tel. 1485.

OBSERVED THEIR BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARIES

Mr. and Mrs. Brickett Greeted by Their Friends

MR. EDMUND BRICKETT

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Brickett, of 65 Dover street, one of the oldest couples in this city, today quietly observed their birthday anniversaries. Mr. Brickett is 81 years old today and his wife is 78. While the latter's birthday came on the 20th of the present month, for many years they have observed their anniversaries jointly and this year is no exception. This evening there will be an informal concert and during the day many friends called and congratulated the venerable couple. Both are very active considering their advanced years, particularly Mr. Brickett, who at the present time attends to active business.

If both live until the 10th of next January, they will observe their 60th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Brickett is descended on both sides from old New England families who trace their ancestry back for many generations and who like most of the early settlers, were engaged in agricultural pursuits. They were noted for their longevity, which undoubtedly accounts for the ripe age that Mr. Brickett now enjoys. His father, Abram Brickett, was born in Newbury, Vermont, in 1809 and died in Newark, Vermont, Feb. 10, 1883. His mother was born in 1800, in Peacham, Vermont and passed away in Danville, Vermont, August 10, 1874.

Edmund Brickett was born in Peacham, Vermont, May 25, 1831 and he is the fifth child of Abram and Violette Brickett. He was educated in the public schools of his native town and Cabot, Vermont, whither his family had removed, until he attained his eighteenth year. His first occupation was farming in which he engaged until 20 years of age. In 1851 he came to Lowell and found employment in the carding room of the Tremont and Suffolk mills. In four months he was promoted to section hand in the weaving room, remaining one year and leaving to accept the same position with the Appleton corporation where he remained until 1854.

On January, 1853 Mr. Brickett was united in marriage to Lucy F. Flint, daughter of Asa Flint of Walden, Vermont, the ceremony being performed at the Highland Congregational church on Westford street. They had known each other in Vermont and it was shortly after Miss Flint came here that the wedding took place. After the wedding Mrs. Brickett was not in the best of health so her husband purchased a farm in Cabot, Vermont, where they went and remained 18 years. They then returned to Lowell and Mr. Brickett conducted a corporation boarding house for the Tremont & Suffolk for four and one half years.

In July 1857 he opened a coal and wood office at 6 Fletcher street and disposed of his interest in the boarding house. He devoted his time to the office and did considerable building until 1896 when he sold out his business and intended to retire. While he gave up the office he continued to do small jobs.

Two children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Brickett, Leroy A. who passed away when he was very young and Emma M. The latter married Charles F. Robinson, and at the present time occupies a beautiful residence at 566 Huntington avenue, Boston. They have one son, George Edmund Robinson and he is a great favorite with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Brickett. Mrs. Robinson spends considerable time with her parents here and she is well and favorably known as a teacher of the piano. Her husband, Mr. Robinson, is in business at 1099 Commonwealth ave., and her son who recently graduated from Cornell university, as a master mechanic, now holds a very responsible position. These are the only relatives of the happy couple, and they are among those present at the anniversary celebration today.

THE SITUATION IN CUBA IS GROWING MORE SERIOUS

TAFT OPPOSES INTERVENTION

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Private despatches to the state department during last night all agreed that the negro revolutionary movement in Cuba was hourly growing more serious.

The Washington government, it can be stated, is preparing for eventualities but will wait another day or two before sending any more marines or troops to the island. The Cuban government will be given adequate time to demonstrate its ability or inability to clear out at least a part of the revolution before the American forces now enroute to Guantanamo are augmented.

The plans for increasing the armed forces in Cuba, it is carefully pointed out here, do not contemplate intervention. The troops would be used merely as a protective force. If the Cuban government, finding itself unable to quell the disorders, should ask for American aid the matter would be thoroughly discussed by the president and his cabinet before action was taken. Mr. Taft, it is said, is very averse to intervention, or any move that could be interpreted as such.

Some of today's despatches seemed to point to the need of dispatching marines to various plantations and American properties in the island to act as guards but as yet no detachments have been ordered out of the naval reservation at Guantanamo. Until the arrival of the cruiser Prairie about Monday with the battalion of marines and the gunboats Paducah and Nashville, probably late today there is not much of an American force to be used, as only one company of marines comprising about 100 men is kept at the naval station.

Out of the mass of conflicting reports that have come to the state and war departments as to the actual situation in Cuba the conclusion was drawn today that a crisis impends in the island and that this is sufficient to justify full preparations for the protection of American interests. Therefore word was passed to the navy to hold itself subject for call and at noon two divisions of the great Atlantic fleet were under orders to rendezvous at New York and Hampton Roads. State department officials inclined to the assembly of this force at Key West. While willing to adopt that suggestion if requested to do so, the naval officials believe that until the ships are actually needed in Cuban waters they will occupy a better strategic situation at these northern ports.

Favors Intervention

Senator Bacon of Georgia declaring in the senate today that the president would have no authority of law for sending an armed force into Cuba, introduced a resolution, which passed, instructing the committee on Cuban relations to suggest legislation authorizing intervention there under the conditions provided for in the so-called Platt amendment. This amendment, which applied to an old law, governs the United States course toward Cuba.

The soloists were all in fine voice and the "ends" were right there with their jokes. The paid their respects to the town politicians to the delight of all. During the heavy storm, a bolt of lightning struck a tree near the house and entered the house by the kitchen window. It circled around the room for a few seconds and then entered the pantry where it crashed into the wall, breaking down the plaster. Other rooms in the building were also damaged, but fortunately no one was injured.

INNINGS—	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	Runs	Hits	Errors
New Bedford	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	2	4	2

There was something doing at Spalding park this afternoon when the New Bedford Whalers butted up against Gray's Bingling brothers. The weather was ideal and the attendance was big for the enthusiasts of the national game turned out in large numbers to urge the home team on to victory after the long losing streak.

It was New Bedford's second appearance of the season and the team was confident of victory inasmuch as the visitors turned the tables on Lowell at New Bedford last Tuesday when Yount was knocked off the rubber in the first inning.

Lowell was also equally confident and in conversation with the sporting writer of The Sun prior to the opening of the game, Manager Gray said: "We have been playing in hard luck but I assure you that we'll be right up with the leaders in two weeks. Lavigne's disability as well as the injury to Cooney's finger have greatly handicapped us, but believe me the team that beats Lowell will win the pennant."

Lonergan who is covering second base for the home team is a former Boston Red Sox player. He was secured from Jersey City and made his first appearance in Lowell this afternoon.

Manager Gray also announced that he had traded "Pop" Rising and gave a cash consideration for Clements of Haverhill, who will cover the centre garden for Lowell in the future. The new find is considered one of the best outfielders in the league. Rising will report at Haverhill Monday.

Lavigne who was injured at Lawrence last Saturday, was in uniform on the grounds today, but did not play.

There were about 2500 people present when the game opened and hundreds of others entered the field after the game started.

Wolfgang was on the mound for Lowell and Monahan was on the receiving end of the battery. Swormstead and Rufiange formed the battery for the visitors.

Umpire White called the game at 3 o'clock. The batting order of the teams was as follows:

LOWELL	NEW BEDFORD
Clements, cf	ss, Maranville
Magee, lf	lf, Wilson
De Groff, rf	2b, Connaughton
Cooney, ss	cf, Sweatt
Boultes, 3b	1b, Ness
Miller, 1b	rf, O'Connell
Lonergan, 2b	3b, Spires
Monahan, c	c, Rufiange
Wolfgang, p	p, Swormstead

First Inning

Maranville hit to Lonergan and failed to reach first. Wilson was second out on a fly to Magee. Connaughton hit to Lonergan, who booted the ball and he was safe at first. Sweatt hit to Cooney, who threw the sphere to Lonergan getting Connaughton.

The home team failed to score in the latter half of the inning. Clements was the first man up. He hit to Maranville and was out at first on a close decision. Magee went out in the same manner. De Groff flied to Connaughton.

Score—Lowell 0, New Bedford 0.

Second Inning

In the second inning Ness was retired on strikes. O'Connell hit to Wolfgang and was out at first. Spires hit the ball along the first base line, and the sphere stopped at the bag. Miller was playing in the rear of the base and before he could reach the base Wolfgang sprinted across the field and recovering the ball tagged the base before the runner reached there.

Lowell scored one run in the second half of the inning. Cooney started off with a single to left field and went to second on Boultes' sacrifice. Miller hit to Spires and Cooney started for third, but was doubled up between the bases. Miller went to second on the play. Miller scored on a wild pitch. Lonergan was third out, Swormstead to first.

Score—Lowell 1, New Bedford 0.

Third Inning

The visitors went out in one, two, three order in the third inning. Rufiange and Swormstead went out on strikes and Maranville hit to Boultes and died at first.

After one man had been put out in the latter half of the inning and the bases had been filled, Lowell failed to score. Monahan hit to Maranville and died at first. Wolfgang singled to left, Clements walked to first after being hit by a pitched ball and when Magee drew a free pass the bases were filled. De Groff hit to Maranville and Wolfgang was caught at the plate. Cooney was third out on a fly to Maranville.

Score—Lowell 1, New Bedford 0.

Fourth Inning

In the fourth inning Wilson singled to centre, this being the first hit made off Wolfgang. He went to second on Connaughton's single. Sweatt hit to Boultes and was out at first, and Ness hit to Wolfgang and was also out at first.

In the latter half of the inning Boultes hit to Swormstead and was out at first. Miller flied to Sweat and Lonergan went out the same way.

Score—Lowell 1, New Bedford 0.

Fifth Inning

O'Connell flied to Lonergan and Spires singled to right. Rufiange flied to Clements and Swormstead foul flied to Miller.

Monahan was the first man to approach the plate in Lowell's half, and he hit to Maranville and was out at first. Wolfgang flied to Wilson, Clements hit in front of the plate and Rufiange gathered in the ball and sent it to first in time to get the runner.

Score—Lowell 1, New Bedford 0.

Sixth Inning

Maranville hit to Boultes and beat the ball to first and went to second on Wilson's sacrifice. Connaughton hit to Lonergan and was out at first. Sweatt fanned the breezes.

Magee flied to Ness and De Groff sent the ball into the left garden but Wilson dropped it and De Groff reached second. Cooney knocked the ball to Maranville and was out at first, De Groff going to third on the play. Boultes walked and then stole second. Miller flied to Wilson.

Score—Lowell 1, New Bedford 0.

Seventh Inning

Ness went out Cooney to Miller. O'Connell who followed him flied to Clements. Spires was third out on a fly to Magee.

Lonergan hit to Spires and was out at first. Monahan singled to left. De Groff who was on the third base coach line created considerable amusement by doing the Hughey Jennings act, pulling up grass. Wolfgang singled to centre field. Clements flied to Maranville. Magee singled to left. With the bases filled De Groff came to bat but he was not able to score any of the men on base. He hit to Ness and was out at first.

Score—Lowell 1, New Bedford 0.

Eight Inning

Rufiange was the first man up in the eighth. He went out Boultes to first. Swormstead flied to Cooney. Maranville struck out.

Cooney fanned, it being the first strike out made by Swormstead during the game. Boultes went out, Spires to first. Miller bunted to Swormstead who threw high to first and Miller went to third. Lonergan hit to Connaughton and beat it to first, Miller scoring. Monahan flied to O'Connell.

Score—Lowell 2, New Bedford 0.

Ninth Inning

Wilson hit a high one to Wolfgang who threw him out at first. Connaughton flied to Clements. Sweatt hit to Boultes who fumbled the ball. Ness sent the ball over the left field fence for a home run, scoring Sweatt and himself. O'Connell bunted in front of the plate and he was thrown out at third.

EIGHT DEATHS

RESULTED FROM MEASLES IN THIS CITY THIS WEEK

There were eight deaths from measles in Lowell this week and 70 cases of the disease were reported at the office of the board of health at city hall. The doctors claim that the majority of people are too careless about measles and that the deaths are not due directly to measles but to some secondary trouble, usually pneumonia. "When children have measles," said one doctor, "their parents should see to it that they are not exposed to drafts for the chances are if they catch cold they will have pneumonia or some secondary trouble that is very liable to take them away."

A LINEN SHOWER

Miss Mary A. Doyle, a popular young woman of the Sacred Heart parish was last night tendered a linen shower at the home of Miss Katherine Hickey in Kinsman street, on account of her approaching wedding. The guest of the evening was the recipient of many useful linen gifts.

DESTROYED BY FIRE

Cottage Burned to the Ground Today

A cottage belonging to Charles E. Bunker and situated in Dracut just over the city line near the East Meadow road, was destroyed by fire this morning and practically all the contents were consumed by the flames. The cause of the fire is unknown.

A telephone alarm was sent to the Central fire station at 8.16 o'clock this morning and Deputy Chief Engineer Saunders, Engine Co. No. 5 and Hose Co. No. 8, together with the Westford street chemical, were despatched to the scene. When the apparatus arrived at the city line in Moody street the building was nearly burned to the ground and inasmuch as there was no chance to secure water the firemen did not cross the city line.

APPEAL FOR FUNDS BY LOWELL GUILD

To Fight the Scourge of Cholera Infantum

The Lowell Guild appeals to everyone interested in babies, for contributions, large or small, for the work of the milk station the coming summer. It is a fight against the scourge of cholera infantum.

It is the policy of the Guild to live within its income, and it has sufficient funds on hand to do its regular work in district nursing and care of babies for the year, but in order to extend the work among the babies it will be necessary to raise sufficient money to meet the increased expense and it is hoped the friends of the Guild who know what has been accomplished will be willing to lend a hand.

The record of the station for last summer speaks for itself. Of nearly one hundred babies cared for, only one died. This year it is hoped many more may be looked after. The extent of the work will be limited only by the funds received. The need for this special work comes with the first hot weather, and it is hoped the response to this appeal will be prompt and generous.

Make cheques payable to George R. Chandler, who will receive all contributions at the Union bank.

Mrs. James F. Preston, President.

Trustees—Mrs. Edward N. Burke, Mr. Edward B. Carney, Mr. George R. Chandler, Mrs. W. G. Eaton, Mr. Frederick A. Flather, Mrs. E. D. Holden, Mrs. Edwin Hyland, Mrs. A. J. Murkland, Miss Edith Stott, Mr Jude C. Wadleigh.

KOSCIUSKO MONUMENT

To be Unveiled on the 30th of May

YONKERS, N. Y., May 25.—The monument to Thaddeus Kosciusko (Polish spelling Kosciuszko) will be unveiled May 30 in front of the Polish school and convent. The monument, erected by popular subscription, was the result of a suggestion made Sunday, January 29, 1911, in a sermon by the Rev. Joseph C. Dworzak, rector of St. Casimir's church. The unveiling will follow a parade in which many patriotic societies will take part. There will be addresses by the Rev. Mr. Dworzak, Mayor James T. Lennon, Judge Joseph Beall, Colonel Joseph Smolinski of Washington and others.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

The gladsome hot weather cometh and with it a desire to get into a cool place. No place in town will be better fitted to take care of overheated humanity than B. F. Keith's new theatre on Bridge street, where one can revel in cool breezes and at the same time watch excellent vaudeville and the very latest vintage of motion pictures. Let one be comfortable and a show goes with a whole lot of pleasure, but the seeker after entertainment in hot weather, who is suffering from the heat, couldn't appreciate the best show on earth. Topping the big bill of next week are Theo Lightner and Elvia Bates, two brilliant performers, who give their splendid piano duolog, replete with new songs, brilliant patter and first class piano playing. Misses Lightner and Bates are good to look upon and better, even to listen to.

A farce comedy that cannot fail to interest is "An Editorial Substitute," played by Miss Margaret Bird and Edward F. Roseman. A most humorous story is told in the piece. The substitute for a woman editorial writer on a newspaper chances to meet one of the paper's regular women correspondents. She has always imagined that the most feminine of creatures looks after the woman's page. When, however, she is confronted by a burly man who writes the most delightful matter, complications arise. They cannot fail to, for the little piece is so constructed as to almost play itself. Miss Bird is a charming young woman, and Mr. Roseman is an excellent actor. The quartet of the theatre, consisting of "Jary Hobo," is one of the most amusing Misses Isleib and Von Brocklin and comedians on the vaudeville stage. Messrs. MacAdams and Lloyd will Simonds is well known locally, having give "A Seaside Garden," a pretty been associated with the Adam Good musical sketch in which all of the Stock company which played here for very latest songs are sung. "Darby and Joan," a motion picture subject drawn from the old poem, and showing the very acme of marital felicity, a rare subject in pictures these days, is another good subject. "A Western Legacy" and "A Good Catch" are other Essanay subjects to be treated. In addition there are the musical numbers by the orchestra. Prices are 5, 10 and 15 cents the cream of entertainment for the minimum of price.

The special entertainments to be given Sunday afternoon and evening will include four vaudeville acts, with six positively new pictures.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"At Textile," a musical comedy, put on by The Temple Players, will be one of the attractions at the Merrimack Square Theatre for the coming week. The sketch is an original creation, containing all of the school songs and yells, with a pleasant intermingling of bright comedy and the latest and best song-hits of the season, that combine in making the offering the equal of any of the presentations heretofore given by this company of entertainers. Miss Hawthorne and the other members of the cast will be heard in pleasing numbers and the chorus work and other features will share in the satisfactory results which the piece is sure of attaining. William P. Goodale's own composition, "The Lost Chord Rag," will be a feature as well as other school songs. Thos. Whiteley, one of the survivors of the Titanic will give an interesting recital of incidents and happenings which occurred at the time that ship was in collision with an iceberg at sea and more than 1000 passengers went with it to the bottom of the ocean. Whiteley was employed as a steward by the White Star Steamship company and was among the last persons, among the survivors, to leave the ship before she took her fatal plunge beneath the surface of the sea. He, together with other members of the ship's crew were placed in command of the last lifeboat to be sent off, and as a result of his trying experiences he was confined to a hospital in New York City for some days after landing there on the rescue ship Carpathia.

THEATRE VOYONS

Tonight affords the public of Lowell the last chance to see Professor Optimo, the disciple of happiness, at the Theatre Voyons. He is one of the great benefactors of today for he has been preaching the gospel of smile and be happy for years in all countries and before all kinds of people. See him and be happy. Pathe's Weekly shows many most interesting events which have occurred recently and among them is a most interesting one of Cardinal Gibbons delivering an address at the unveiling of a monument to Bishop Carroll, the founder of Georgetown university. Another shows Henry Cabot Lodge in a most unsenatorial occupation planting a tree. The dramatic subject is excellent and the musical program is unapproached.

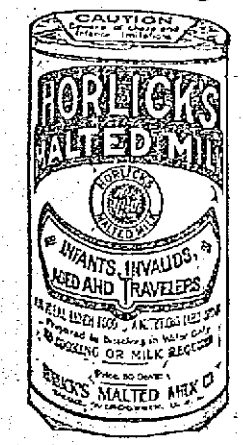

BILLERICA

The interlocking switch and signal tower of the Boston & Maine in Billerica is to be discontinued tomorrow at 11 a. m. From now on the switches will be operated by hand at the point where each switch is located. The discontinuance of the use of the tower will make more work for the station inasmuch as the telegraphing will be done from that place, and two extra telegraphers will be added to the force in order to take care of the extra work. Messrs. MacDonald, Russell and Sheridan, who have been employed as operators in the tower for a number of years will be assigned to other towers.

SEVERE STORM STRUCK CITY
SEVERAL ALARMS OF FIRE
THE RAIN FELL IN TORRENTS

A spectacular electrical storm accompanied by torrential downpours of rain held this city in tight embrace for more than three hours yesterday afternoon and while the lightning struck in several places no very serious damage has been reported. The storm piled up the expense bills of the Lowell Electric Light corporation, the New England Telephone and Telegraph company, the Bay State railway and other public utility companies. Lightning struck the Immaculate Conception church in Belvidere. The bolt struck the gutter and entered the basement of the church on the wires leading to the motor of the organ. The fuses were blown out and a can of paint that was used by painters doing repair work was set on fire but was readily and easily extinguished. Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O. M. I., was in the basement at the time and assisted in putting out the fire. Lightning also struck the new main of the Lowell Gas Light company on School Street bridge and made a large hole in the iron pipe. Fire was started from the escaping gas and the firemen were summoned to extinguish the blaze. Several trees were destroyed and great damage was done to wires. Considerable damage was done in suburban towns. In a house in Chelmsford the telephone battery box in the sitting room was torn off and tossed into a chair.

A more marked contrast in weather conditions would be hard to find or even to imagine. At 3 o'clock the city was sweltering in the grip of the first real hot wave of the season and at 4 o'clock the lightning was playing across the sky in jagged streaks, there was roll upon roll of thunder, the rain was coming down in torrents and there had been a quite remarkable fall in the temperature.

To be very accurate about it, it should be written that there were three storms instead of one but they were in such quick succession as to almost run into each other and to speak of them as one storm is permissible. There was a series of fire alarms but there were no serious fires.

House Was Struck

A house at 162 Sanders avenue, owned by David Libby, was damaged by lightning, as was also a house in Belvidere owned by Hon. Charles S. Lilley, and another house in Hale street, near the railroad bridge. There were some narrow escapes of occupants of buildings but no one was injured. The storm or storms were the most severe seen in this city for years.

Trees Were Destroyed

Trees on Loring, Jewett and London streets were struck by lightning and will have to be removed. Considerable damage was done to fruit trees in towns near Lowell, by lightning, rain and high wind.

Cars Were Disabled

It was a bad storm for the street railway people and car after car was put out of commission in all parts of the city and some of the cars that weathered the storm gave up the ghost later in the evening, crippling the service and presenting a vexing and perplexing tangle for the management to straighten out. There were a great many people subjected to long and tiresome waits, but everybody who was forced to wait appreciated the fact that the company was doing its level best to keep things moving and everything considered the company did very well. Every line in the city and suburbs was more or less affected and the damage to cars will cost the company quite a sum of money.

Telephone Wires Disabled

More than 200 telephone wires were silenced and the service was all to the bad. There are telephone men in all sections of the city this morning repairing the damage to wires and repairing wires on a day when there is so much electricity lurking in the air is not the safest proposition in the world, but the work must be done and there are men who are willing to take the chance.

Houses in Darkness

The Lowell Electric Light corporation was another public service corporation that had troubles of its own. Over 200 calls were sent to the light station after the first section of the storm had worn off and before seven o'clock six repair crews were working tooth and nail. Supt. John A. Hunnewell said it was the worst electric storm he had seen since his connection with the electric lighting business. "I want to state," said Mr. Hunnewell, "that we appreciate the courtesy shown us by the people of Lowell and vicinity in regard to the damage done to our lines in their houses. It seemed that everybody realized the seriousness of the storm and put up with the inconvenience caused, with the best possible grace. We had crews of men on the job in short time, but everything cannot be done at once."

Many Fire Alarms

In the very worst of the storm box 145 rang out and the firemen went to it with a will. The break in the gas main in School street was responsible for the alarm, but the fire didn't amount to much. A little later there was a call from box 63 that summoned the firemen to the Crosby residence in Hale street, where a bolt had struck a chimney going down through it and driving out a lot of smoke and soot, but there was no fire. The firemen were congratulating themselves on being let down easy when there was an alarm from box 85. A lightning bolt doing stunts on the residence of David Libby, 162 Sanders avenue, was responsible for the alarm. The bolt tore through the tiles of the roof, but trailed out without doing any further harm, and started a fire in the barn nearby. The department arrived in good season, however, and put the fire out in a very few minutes.

Out in Chelmsford

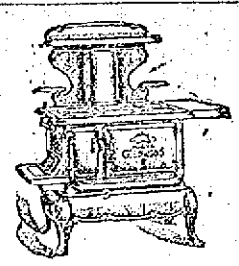

The oldest residents in Chelmsford declared that the storm of yesterday was the worst in years and there were narrow escapes from serious injury.

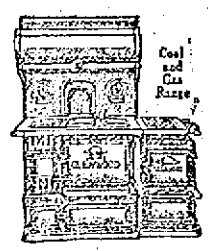

W. C. Ward's house on Westford street was struck by the lightning, the bolt entering through the clapboards near the eaves on the north side of the house, tearing a hole in the plastering, exposing the laths and in another place scorching the wall paper. In the house at the time were Mrs. Ward, her daughters, Elizabeth and Eleanor and her husband's mother, Mrs. Charles Ward. None of them was injured, although Mrs. Chas. Ward, who was seated in a chair in her room, was thrown to the floor. Going into the hall, she discovered the spread on a bed in the room entered by the lightning to be on fire and she quickly extinguished the blaze before serious damage had been done. In the next chamber on the south side of the house the greatest havoc was worked. A large mirror on a dresser was shattered into tiny pieces and showered over the room, the force with which they were scattered being demonstrated by a quantity of the fragments imbedded in the opposite wall. Pictures were thrown from the walls and a piece of the moulding about the mirror, perhaps two feet in length was driven into the wall near the ceiling. A window in this room was broken, and it was apparent from a hole in the roof just over this chamber that the lightning made its exit at this point. A small mark on the chimney in the kitchen was the only evidence on the first floor of the lightning's visit. When the house was struck Mrs. W. C. Ward was in the cellar and that part of the bolt that went down the chimney seemed to fill the cellar with flame.

During the first storm shingles were torn by a bolt from the roof of an ornamental well house in the yard at Walter B. Emerson's on North street, and the telephone battery box in the sitting room was torn off and tossed into a Morris chair. Fortunately no one was injured.

Storm Bad in Billerica

The storm was said to be the worst to visit Billerica in years and the rain came down in torrents. A barn owned by Andrew Benson was struck by a bolt during the first storm and was completely destroyed by fire and a horse was burned to death.

BABY'S HEAD ITCHED SO COULD NOT SLEEP

Sores Began to Come on Cheeks. Were Raw as Could Be. Would Scratch Till They Bled. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In 6 Weeks Baby Well as Ever.

125 Clark St., Clinton, Mass. — "My babies are twin boys and at the age of three months one of them began to have sores on his head which looked like little pimples. In a few days it was raw and swollen. I tried all I thought was good for humors till it began to come on his two cheeks. They were as raw as could be and behind one ear it was almost cut through. Baby would scratch his cheeks till they bled and many nights I had to sit up in bed and rub his head with my hand, for it would itch so he could not sleep.

"The doctor told me it was eczema. I had heard lots about Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, so I sent for a sample and I found on the fourth day baby slept better and the swelling was gone. The water no longer ran from his head, and he made no attempt to scratch. So I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and in six weeks' time baby was as well as ever.

"His head was so covered with sores I had to cut his hair close to his head. Now his hair has grown long and he has had no more sores. If every mother feels as I did to see their little ones suffer and try to rub the little head on the pillow to get some relief, they will try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment to cure baby." (Signed) Mrs. John Brooks, Nov. 17, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book. Address, "Cuticura," Dept. T, Boston. Tender-faced men should shave with Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick.

Revival of the Old Fashioned Sash for Summer Wear

FLOWER SASH ON GIRL'S EVENING FROCK

The revival of the old fashioned sash is a welcome fact to most women who realize what an important factor sashes are to any frock and particularly the part they play in freshening up old costumes.

Black velvet or satin is the favored material for the directoire sash girdle. Indeed, velvet ribbon in all wide widths is used in a number of smart ways. One very good arrangement is that of black velvet draped around the waist in loose folds and finished in the back with two long rounded ends. One of the ends is a trifle longer than the other, with the longest point reaching about twenty inches from the hem of the skirt. A narrow quilling of black satin ribbon outlines the ends and also trims the flat pump bow at the waist line.

The girl's evening frock illustrated has a delightful sash effect trimmed with roses and a fringe of ribbons with dangling rosebuds. The draped bodice is adorned with tiny rosebuds in the same pastel colors. A corsage rose is held in the hand, and in the hair is a wreath of small coiffure roses, all fashioned of ribbon. With this dancing frock are worn dancing boots of black satin with crystal buttons.

LOWELL LOST 12 INNING GAME TO FALL RIVER

Score 1 to 0—A Great Pitchers' Battle Between Maybohm and Arminger

FALL RIVER, May 25.—Fall River yesterday defeated Lowell in a twelve inning game by the score of 1 to 0. The game marked the fourth defeat of the week for the Lowell team.

It was a pitchers' battle between Maybohm and Arminger and though the Fall River men only got seven hits off Maybohm while the Lowell men got nine, the former's hits came at a more opportune time. In the final inning Captain Devine started off with a single past Boultes, Bowcock hit to Cooney and the latter threw high to first and the runner got on. Hickman bunted to Maybohm and beat it out to first. Miller banged a grounder to Miller and Devine beat the throw to the plate for the winning tally.

The game was one of the best played at Fall River this season and many feature plays were pulled off. Pop Rising had a good day with the willow, getting three hits out of five times up. Another feature was the time that the game was played in, it taking just one hour and fifty-eight minutes to go through the entire twelve innings. The score:

There Are a Few Good Batting Pitchers, But the Majority of the Twirlers Are Very Weak With the Stick

There are many queer features in baseball, and one of the strangest of these is the brass bound rule that a good pitcher is a poor batter.

Of course there are exceptions to the rule, but the majority of the twirlers in the big leagues are very weak with the stick. In the old days little attention was given to the batting of the boxmen, but of late years they are ordered to take their turn in batting practice as well as the other players. The result is that there are several pitchers in the game today that can wallop the ball as well as those who are in the game every day.

In Jack Coombs and Charley Bender the Philadelphia Athletics have two pitchers who can do some good stick work. Last season the former hit around .300. Ray Caldwell of the New York Americans is another who can whale the ball. Otey Crandall of the New York Giants is the best hitting twirler of the National league, and Harry McIntyre of the Chicago Cubs is a close second. Patsy Flaherty, late of the Boston Nationals, is another pegger who can punch the ball.

Ed. Walsh of the Chicago White Sox is one of the best hitting pitchers in the American league, and Bill Donovan, George Mullin and Gus Willett of Detroit can soak 'em here and there, but those who can both pitch and hit are not numerous.

SOME PITCHERS WHO ARE HANDY WITH THE WILLOW

In talking about hitting pitchers recently Russell Ford, the star twirler of the New York Americans, said: "Each pitcher does about two-thirds of the tolling furnished for that game upon each team. An infielder may average five chances and an outfielder three, but the pitcher and his catcher are mixed up in every play made, for the ball must be thrown before it can be pushed into additional play. This physical and mental strain in a tough game is heavy. I know that by the fourth or fifth inning I'm content to center all I have left on preventing others from hitting, with no great ambition the other way round. I like my hits as well as the next one, but I am thinking more of the hits I can choke off than the hits I can make.

The Cincinnati club is living up to its reputation of developing star players for other teams. For years the Reds have turned loose men who have played great ball for other teams.

Pitchers Jean Dubuc of the Detroit Tigers and Elmer Brown of the St. Louis Browns are the latest examples. Cincinnati picked Dubuc after he had pitched great ball for Notre Dame. He was tried in Cincinnati two seasons and then turned over to Montreal. Now he is the star pitching recruit of the Detroit club.

Red Nelson recommended Elmer Brown to the Reds last spring. Griff procured an option on him from the Columbus club, which had farmed him out to Akron. Brown was in poor shape when he reported to the Reds. Griffith decided he wouldn't do because of his failure to produce a good curve ball. Brown returned to Akron and had another big year. Now he promises to stick with the Browns.

Mike Donlin, Cy Seymour, Al Bridwell, Mike Mowrey, "Rebel" Oakes, Miller Huggins, Orval Overall and Harry Steinfeldt are a few other players who starred after being traded by the Reds.

STORM CAUSED ACCIDENT AND 12 WERE INJURED

SAUGUS, May 25.—More than a dozen persons were injured when two cars of the Bay State Street Railway company came together in a rear-end collision in the darkness incident to a heavy thunder storm last evening.

One was a regular car from Wakefield to Lynn, and was crowded with working people on their way to their homes. Following it was a special car loaded with Lynn people who had been attending a land sale.

The cars had reached North Saugus where the roadway winds around through the woods when the storm broke. The sudden darkness and the sheets of rain made it almost impossible to see any distance.

The special rounded a curve and before the motorman realized it, he was too close to the forward car to avoid striking. Both cars were badly damaged. Wakefield and Saugus physicians attended the injured.

POWDER MILLS BLOW UP

ACTON, May 25.—Two mills of the American Powder company, a corning mill and a press mill, were blown up during a heavy thunder storm last night.

The buildings were wrecked and many windows in the neighborhood broken, but no one was injured. Lightning is supposed to have struck one of the buildings and the other was set off by the concussion.

Workmen had been about the buildings a short time before, but had left with the outbreak of the storm. The loss is estimated at $5000.

WOMAN STRUCK BY BOLT

NORTHAMPTON, May 25.—During a violent thunder shower which passed over this city between 5 and 6 o'clock last night Mrs. Antonia Mazanac, a Bohemian woman, who was returning home from a day's work, was struck by lightning. She was knocked down and her right hand and legs severely burned.

FIREMEN INJURED

WEBSTER, May 25.—Lightning last evening struck and damaged the railroad station of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. to the amount of $200.

The fire department was called, but before the firemen arrived the flames had made their way to the kerosene barrels and a violent explosion followed. The blaze spread quickly. The floor fell, injuring several firemen.

WATER POURS INTO STORES

SPRINGFIELD, May 25.—A continuous thunder storm which lasted for two and one-half hours, the hardest which has visited the Southwestern section of the state thus far this year, passed over Springfield yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Several huge trees were blown down, in many places obstructing traffic until they could be chopped away. A house at 35 Crosby street was struck by lightning and the chimney demolished.

The sewers on State Street hill were unable to take care of the heavy rainfall and the water leaped the curb in many places, flooding the stores along the south side of the street, ruining goods in the cellars.

ENDS FIREMEN'S STRIKE

LEICESTER, May 25.—A fire yesterday afternoon caused by lightning razed to the ground the barn and carriage stable at the residence of George Mann in this town, stunned Daniel McCue, who was rescued by his brother James, and incidentally broke the Leicester fire department strike which has existed here for some days.

LOTS OF EXCITEMENT AT FIRE TODAY

Little Damage Done by the Blaze

An alarm from box 23 about 1.30 o'clock this afternoon summoned a portion of the fire department to 54 Coburn street, but when the firemen arrived on the scene it was found that the fire had been extinguished. The blaze was trivial and it was not necessary to call the department.

A woman who occupied the second story of the building was using a cloth to polish the kitchen stove when the cloth caught fire. She threw it out of the window into the street and some excited person seeing it rushed to the nearest box and pulled in the alarm.

The building is three stories high and the greater portion of the first floor is used as a variety store by Margaret O'Brien. Although the store has been closed for the past week it was thought that the woman, who occupies several rooms in the rear of the store, was inside and people in the vicinity smashed the glass in the doors and kicked in the panels, but an investigation showed that the rear rooms were not occupied.

Hundreds of people were attracted to the scene and it was with difficulty that Sergt. Maguire and Patrolman O'Brien cleared the streets in the vicinity. The two officers remained at the building until the doors had been boarded up.

POLICE LEAGUE

HAS BEEN DIVIDED INTO TWO DIVISIONS

Manager Jack Donovan of the Lowell police ball team attended a meeting in Chelsea yesterday of representatives of the Massachusetts Police Baseball league. There was a general discussion of the league's prospects and it was decided to divide the league into two divisions. This was done so the schedule may be finished quicker.

Under the new arrangement six teams will make up each of the two divisions and the winners of each division will meet at the close of the season in the final game for the championship. As a result of this change all games played up to date will be thrown out.

Division 1 is to be made up of Metropolitan Park, Revere, Beverly, Lynn, Salem and Lowell. Division 2 is composed of Cambridge, Newton, Quincy, Somerville, Chelsea and Everett.

The next game to be played in Lowell will be on Wednesday of the coming week when Revere will meet the pindle City coppers at Spalding park.

BOXING GOSSIP

Sandy Ferguson is really training and when he steps into the Arena building in Boston to meet Tom Kennedy next Tuesday night local boxing fans will see him lighter and in better condition than he has been in his entire career.

The Chelsea Giant has been a good boy for nearly a year and has at last awakened to the possibilities for a good "white hope." He is doing more hard training for this match than he was ever known to do before. In the morning he hits the roads along the Revere boulevard for eight miles. In the afternoon he works in the gymnasium for one solid hour without a let-up. His "gym" stunts consist of rope skipping, bag punching, shadow work and a six round set-to with George Byers.

If he wins from Kennedy he will be in line to secure matches with Al Palzer, Al Kaufman, Tony Ross, Jim Stewart and the rest of the "heavies." Another chance at Jack Johnson is what Sandy is striving for and if he can defeat Kennedy it will be a real stepping stone toward his goal.

Ferguson has met Champion Johnson in six, ten and twenty round contests and has no more fear of the present champion than he has of a lightweight. Beating Kennedy means a lot to Ferguson and he is out to win.

Kennedy, however, has some ideas of his own on this subject and feels certain that he will take Ferguson's measure. The New York heavy-weight is a big, clever chap of the Jim Corbett type and has ambitions just as great as Ferguson to become king of the heavies.

Al Delmont and Paddy Callahan of Brooklyn, New York, have the fans all guessing as to who is the better boy. It is one of those questions that only a meeting between them can settle and Tuesday night's affair will be one that New England fans have been waiting patiently for.

Young Donahue of Roxbury is in New York training with Bob Moah and sends word to his Roxbury friends that he will come back prepared to punch holes in Johnny Connolly. Eddie Mack, the manager of Connolly says that Donahue is very apt to meet with an unpleasant surprise. This match is at catch-weights and Connolly will show the same good form that he has against Kid Goodman, Peter Sullivan and Dave Deshler.

Jimmie Gardner looks like the real goods again having dispensed with considerable weight which he carried through the winter. The local followers of the game hope to see him in action in the near future.

DO IT NOW

This is spring, the time when you will need to have your lightweight wearing apparel, and ours is the place to send it for cleansing, dyeing and steaming. RUSHING WORK ON B. & M. SHOPS

It is Expected that the Buildings Will be Completed Before the Winter Sets in—Considerable Culvert Work Had to be Done

NEW BRIDGE OVER MAIN LINE AT POND STREET, BILLERICA, BETWEEN THE TWO VILLAGES.

The work on the development of the land for the new car shops and the locomotive works of the Boston & Maine railway at Billerica is progressing rapidly, and it is expected that before the snow flies the buildings will have been constructed.

At the present time there are several gangs of men working in the three sections, but the principal point of activity is in section two, where piles are being driven for the support of the new buildings.

The grading of the land is almost completed and the engineers expect that this work will be finished within a month.

What was once a dense forest and swamp land has been transformed into a level plain. The trees, and there were many of them, have been cleared away, the hills removed and the sand and dirt taken from these were used to fill in the swamp and lowlands. The elevations and depressions were very irregular prior to the time that the workmen started to bring the place to grade. There were hills at some points and swamps at others producing a vast extended plain from Billerica to the main lines of railroad tracks.

Engineer S. P. Coffin who has general charge of the work, has made great progress and people who have occasion to visit the site from time to time marvel at the wonderful change.

At first it was thought that it would not be necessary to drive any piles for the foundation of the new shops, but later it was learned that piling would make a more substantial foundation owing to the condition of the ground.

There were three steam shovels in operation at the start but at the present time there is but one, that shovel being operated in section one, which is near the main part of the town.

Inasmuch as the Middlesex canal runs across the land in section three it was necessary to do considerable culvert work. The water tank on the premises in section three has been erected and is now in operation.

Laying the Foundation

Workmen are now engaged in placing a foundation for the locomotive shops and piling for the fire house and blacksmith shops, which are located in section two. The piling work is very interesting and hundreds of people visit the premises every day to watch the operations of the experienced workmen. At the present time there are three pile drivers in operation and there is a fourth one on the land which has not as yet been raised. The capping of piles for the steel work where the locomotive shop is to be erected is progressing rapidly and within a short time the structural work will be started, there being many carloads of steel piers and beams which will soon be put in place.

The Wilson and English Construction Co., which has been doing the grading, expects to finish their work within a month. The McArthur Pile and Foundation company is looking after the piling and concrete foundation.

One of the attractions on the site is the big concrete mixer which is located in section two and operated by a big gang of employes who are kept busy all the time on the foundation work.

Narrow Gauge Cars

The narrow gauge cars are still in use, but before long they will be abandoned inasmuch as the Boston & Maine railroad had laid a special siding on the main line and two tracks going from the main line into the new location.

Naturally such a big industry means a big boom for the town, but Lowell will also share in the benefits for although there are several new buildings erected for the purpose of caring for the employes at the present time, when the shops have been erected and the hundreds of employes get to work, owing to the steam railroad and electric railway facilities, many of them make their homes in Lowell.

The house at the corner of High and Rogers streets, which was formerly occupied by the engineers for the Boston & Maine railroad, is now being used by the Wilson & English Construction Co., the Boston & Maine railroad engineers having transferred their quarters several hundred yards down High street, more adjacent to the land in section two.

Mrs. Georgeianna Nadeau, of Worcester, has erected a house at the fork road near the corner of High and Rogers street and at the present time is boarding and lodging a number of the employes on the work. The building, which is supported by wooden piles, has a frontage of 64 feet and is 28 feet in depth. It has a low slanting roof, but proves to be a very comfortable boarding place. The entire first floor is devoted to the dining and cooking rooms, and several sleeping rooms. On the second floor there are sleeping rooms. The building was started last April and many improvements will be made before the car shops will have been completed.

ONE OF THE BIG PILE DRIVERS AND THE CONCRETE MIXER.

The Boston & Maine railroad company in order to accommodate the public and prevent accidents has constructed an overhead bridge in Pond street. This is known as bridge No. 47 and was erected by the McHenry Bridge Co., it being the first bridge of this style ever used over the B. & M. tracks. It is well constructed and will be a great source of convenience to people in the locality.

Building Outlook

The work on the erection of the car shops has caused many land owners and syndicates to secure land in the vicinity of the works, especially on the east side, near the main railroad line, and the timber on the land has been removed and lots staked off. It is said that many of these lots have been sold, to persons who intend to erect buildings either for rental or for permanent use.

The people of Billerica, it is presumed, are well acquainted with the site for the new car sheds and it might also be said that there are many people in Lowell and the vicinity who are also familiar with the locality, but it is worth one's time to take a view of the place and note the progress that has been made since ground has been broken. The nearest approach from Lowell is from High street in Billerica, the entrance to the land being but a short distance from the car line.

ANOTHER CHARGE

MAY BE MADE AGAINST MAN LIEUT. MAHER ARRESTED

John H. Garvey, of South Boston, who was arrested in Middlesex street yesterday morning while trying to dispose of railroad tickets and a punch, the property of the Boston & Maine railroad, on a warrant charging him with breaking and entering the railroad station at Wilmington, Mass., and larceny therefrom, will, when arraigned in court, have to answer to an additional charge of breaking and entering and larceny from the postoffice in the same town.

The man was arrested by Lieut. Martin Maher and the arrest is probably one of the most important made in several months, because the postal authorities have been looking for crooks who have been breaking into the postoffices in towns and according to a wire received in this city this morning the postoffice department intends to make a careful investigation of the different breaks.

OPERETTA "SYLVIA" WELL PRESENTED

Large Audience Enjoyed Real Treat

"Sylvia," an operetta in two acts, was presented last night in Abbott's hall, Forge village by the members of St. Catherine's choir, Graniteville, before an audience that packed the hall. The storm in the early part of the evening did not interfere with the attendance. The American orchestra of Lowell of five pieces, Emil Borjes, director, was in attendance and assisted the cast in the opera. Prior to the performance an overture by the orchestra was given that was well received. To the director, Mr. James A. Murphy of Lowell, high praise is due for his work and careful training. The chorus work was far above the expectations of the audience and was more like a chorus of professionals than that of amateurs. Especially pleasing were the solos, duet and quartet numbers. They were all obliged to respond to encores.

The chorus at the end of the first act was especially pleasing. Joseph Wall of Graniteville was the stage manager and the work was carefully attended to under his direction. "Sylvia," the part portrayed by Miss Lillian Moran was the leading role and she met every requirement of her part. Her rich soprano voice was heard to good advantage and her acting was as pleasing as her singing. "Betty" the next leading female character was taken by Miss Clara McCoy, the leading alto singer in St. John's Choral society, and the excellent quality of her voice stood her in good stead in this exacting role. Her acting was particularly good, especially in the scenes with "William" and "Sylvia." James Burns assumed the character of "Sir Bertram DeLacy" the court poet, faultlessly. Fred Defoe as "Prince Tobbytom" was exceptionally good, especially in the part of the "man of consequence." "Bob" McCarthy, in the character of the farmer, handled his role capably. The other leading characters were taken by Miss Saidee Smith and Mary Gardner as the ladies of court and their songs were well received. Misses Catherine Ward and Carrie Prinn while not assigned to exacting parts were very clever.

After the operetta dancing was enjoyed until midnight. Music being furnished by the American orchestra. During intermission refreshments were served by the ladies of the parish. A large number of the members of St. John's parish attended the affair and were highly pleased with the performance. It is hoped that in the near future the operetta will be presented in North Chelmsford.

A COMMOTION

CAUSED BY THE EXPLOSION OF CARTRIDGES

There was quite a commotion in Gorham street near the Lowell Trust company about 11.30 o'clock this forenoon when cartridges were exploded in a rather unusual way. The cartridges were in the street and were run over by a heavy wagon. About six of the cartridges were discharged and persons in the immediate vicinity were somewhat alarmed. The cartridges were for a 22 calibre gun or pistol and there were about 15 of them in the street. Who put them there or how they got there is the question.

ALDERMAN BARRETT OPPOSED TO CITY BORROWING $300,000 HEARING TO BE HELD MONDAY

The bill to empower the city of Lowell to borrow $300,000 will go before the committee on cities of the legislature on Monday forenoon. The bill will be presented by City Solicitor Hennessy.

Alderman Barrett will oppose the bill. He said today that he would go before the committee on cities and argue against the bill. "I do not believe in borrowing this money," he said, "and I will oppose the bill. We have been told by men who are supposed to be great lawyers that the $700,000 owed by the city cannot be collected; that the debt is illegal because of the way it was contracted. The same attorneys told us last year that the thing was legal and I want to find out where we are at.

"There has been too much confidence placed in wrong quarters and I would like to see this matter worked out to a logical conclusion. The obligation is coming due July 1, and I think the proper course would be to let it go and test the legality of the whole business. I do not believe that we should recommend borrowing of big sums of money to protect this man or that man from being shown up. Somebody is responsible for the present condition of affairs and I want to see the blame placed where it belongs.

"I do not believe that the suggestions offered by Mr. Gettemy should be followed. I know that Mr. Wardell of Mr. Gettemy's office is an expert and I do not pretend to say that I could match him at figures, but I do know that my practical knowledge of affairs in this city is better than his."

It is understood that the bill to be presented will be supported by Mayor O'Donnell and Commissioners Cummings, Brown and Donnelly. It will also receive the support of the state bureau of statistics. The hearing will be held at 10.30 Monday forenoon at room 436, state house.

Final Hour Duller Than the First—No General Change in Conditions—Only Two Railroad Stocks Gained a Point

NEW YORK, May 25.—The only changes of note at the opening of today's stock market were an advance of 1¼ points in People's Gas and one point in Seaboard Air line pfd. The active issues were extremely dull.

Apart from a further rise of 3⅜ points in People's Gas based on rumors of an increased dividend dealings in the first half of the session were almost featureless. Sears, Roebuck was down 2⅜.

The market closed steady. The final hour was duller than the first, with no change in general conditions, except for some slight activity in issues of minor importance. Chesapeake & Ohio and Canadian Pacific were the only railroad stocks to gain a point.

THE MUSKETAQUID CLUB DANCE

In No. Billerica a Grand Success—Sketch of Organization

The Musketaquid Canoe club, one of the most popular athletic clubs in this city, conducted a shirt waist party in Talbot hall, North Billerica last evening and despite the inclement weather it proved a grand success in every particular. The affair took the form of a trolley party, special cars conveying the guests from Lowell to the hall. The attendance was very large, attesting the wide popularity of the organization.

Upon the arrival of the guests at their destination they were received by an efficient reception committee and ushered upstairs and given seats. At 8.30 o'clock, Broderick's orchestra struck up a lively overture which was well received. Several other enjoyable selections were played and at 9 o'clock the floor was cleared for dancing.

One particularly enjoyable number was the "Musketaquid Special," in which all had the time of their lives. This was a new one but all quickly got acquainted and before long "everybody was doing it." Other features were introduced with grand success.

At 10.30 o'clock, there was a short intermission, during which refreshments were served. Following the hall, dancing was resumed and continued until midnight, when all voted the affair one of the best of the season. The return home on the specials was very pleasant, inasmuch as some of the talented members and friends, to the accompaniment of the orchestra, rendered many pleasing selections.

Those responsible for the success of the affair were: General manager, James J. Broderick; assistant general manager, Albert Carney; floor marshal, John W. Healey; assistant floor marshal, George Kirwin; chief aid, Harry Ohlson; aids, Walter Brown Harry Heelon, John Shanley, Nelson Depocher, Joseph McGann, Timothy Finnegan, Thomas Fitzgerald, Timothy Lynch and Fred McGuire.

JAMES J. BRODERICK, General Manager.

Sketch of Club

The present Musketaquid Canoe club was organized in the woods on the banks of the Concord river, Sept. 23, 1907. At that time thirteen young men, residents of the Grove went for a canoe ride up the river. Upon reaching a secluded spot, all went to the shore. There, while talking over current events, one of the young men said that the old Musketaquid club was to dissolve, and the boys agreed to endeavor to secure the quarters of the club. This was done and the thirteen boys leased the cottage, which adjoins the Concord boat house. The lease was signed for four years and the following were elected as the first board of officers: president, John Healey; vice president, Fred McGuire, secretary, John Shanley and treasurer, James Broderick. The first year, under the efficient administration of the officers much progress was made. In the fall of the following year, 1908, a dancing party and social was held and it proved a grand success. A tidy sum was realized, with which furniture for the rooms was purchased and several improvements made. The first summer the Musketaquids established an enviable reputation as canoeists and swimmers and from the first were admired and respected by all other campers along the stream.

During the following two years dancing parties were conducted with excellent results and several socials were held at the camp. In 1910 two new members were initiated and the club continued to grow in power and importance and in Sept., 1911, when the lease on the quarters expired, the members decided to procure a home of their own. A committee was appointed to look up a suitable place. After a week's time the committee reported that the camp on the other side of the Concord boat house was available and it was unanimously agreed to buy the place. So in May, 1911, the cottage now occupied was purchased and completely remodelled. Since that time many improvements have been made and now the club is one of the best equipped on the banks of the river.

The rear of the clubhouse, faces Billerica street and the grounds are laid out very attractively. The building is one and a half stories high. It is surrounded by a piazza. On the first floor a well equipped gymnasium occupies one section, while the canoes, four in number, are stored in another part. There are also two large motor boats and these are stored underneath the front veranda.

On the second floor there are two spacious rooms. One is used for recreation and it is well furnished. The furnishings include a piano, rustic easy corner, parlor suite and everything else that goes to complete an up-to-date retiring apartment. The other is a reading room, supplied with literature of every description, and here many of the members assemble, even in the winter time to read and study different books.

A very pleasant feature of the club is the fact that the 13 charter members are still affiliated with the organization. The present officers are President, James Broderick; vice president, Albert Carney; secretary, John Healey and treasurer, Harry Ohlson.

Pannier and Train Draperies Skillfully Blended-Contrasted Color Effects Favored by the Couturiers-Pearl and Rhinestone Trimmings.

THE average woman puts her formal evening gowns away with a sigh of relief at the beginning of summer, along with the dress suit of her better half, and gives herself up to the consideration of summery raiment; but as some one has remarked, "one-half the world never sleeps," and this statement, though made in another connection, might easily refer to the fashionable half which goes to bed in the wee sma' hours, even in midsummer and in the vacation part of the year. There is a breathing spell during May and June, which some of the fashionable folk spend in running across to Paris for a little shopping. Then begins the summer social season, quite as important in its way as the winter season in town, and more delightful because of the out-of-door entertainments and the slight letting up of extreme formality and ceremoniousness of town life.

July and August at Newport are very gay, indeed. The London season is over by then, and many titled and Honorable somebodies are visiting at the great Newport "Cottages" and taking part in the dinners, garden parties, balls and other festivities. Southampton and Bar Harbor are not far behind Newport in a whirl of gayeties, more or less formal, and later on, Lenox and Tuxedo have their brief, but important, social seasons. The woman who appears in society a great deal through the summer season, must naturally be provided with a number of evening gowns, for however she may move about on a round of country-house visits, the same people, also moving about, will be met again and again, and of course no fashionable woman cares to appear more than half a dozen times in the same gown. After that her maid disposes of it, and nobody knows better than the canny lady's maid just where good prices may be had for Madame's scarcely-worn finery.

Pannier Effects Noticeable in Evening Gowns.

The dancing and dinner gowns for summer wear are not as sumptuously elegant as were the winter gowns, heavy with velvets, brocades and gold lace, but they are exquisitely beautiful none the less, with their drapings of soft satin and chiffon; their flounces of costly lace and their clever color contrasts. What the photographer would call "contrasty" effects are all the rage now in Paris, and surprising combinations of fabrics are used with striking success. White lace gowns have panniers and trains of dead black, and black lace gowns are draped with white. Skirt draperies turn back to reveal facings of strongly-contrasting color, and vivid bows or flowers are added to demure gowns in daring manner. When managed by French skill these "contrasty" effects are interesting and pleasing, but woe be to the woman whose dressmaker has a passion for following French ideals, but lacks the genius to carry them out.

A charming example of the Paris favor for contrasts is shown in a gown by Agnes, which has a bodice and skirt of embroidered white chiffon over cream-colored Bohemian lace. At the back and sides of the waist-line starts a train of black charmeuse, which is draped up in pannier bunches below the hips, and falls in graceful folds and loops at the back, ending in a small train. Around the waist of this gown is a narrow belt of draped jade green velvet, with a flat bow of the green velvet against the black charmeuse at the back. Another "contrasty" gown, by Beer, has a white charmeuse coat to the knees, opening over a petticoat of shadow lace flounces. The front edges of the coat roll back and show a facing of black satin, and at the back these black satin coat tails are knotted together and lifted a bit above the trailing petticoat of lace. And here is the sharp touch of color; over the right knee—just where the coat begins to roll back and show its black reverse side—are two great, glowing American Beauty roses, put there by a stroke of the French genius that never makes a mistake. This gown is belted, over the white satin coat, by a black velvet belt clasped in front with a rhinestone buckle, and above the belt the coat is rounded out in a deep decolletage, and a tucker of shadow lace shows above.

Dolly Varden Evening Gowns of Flowered Silk.

Each of the French couturiers has brought out a Dolly Varden flowered gown, and though differing in particulars, all these gowns are alike in one respect—the pannier. A Dolly Varden costume without a pannier would be Hamlet with Hamlet left out, or something equally as disappointing; and, indeed, the pannier, quite as much as the flowered material, makes the costume worthy of its name. Pompadour silks and flowered taffetas in new and charming patterns have appeared like magic in the shops to make these Dolly Varden gowns, and as a quantity of the silk is required for the draped panniers, the folk who have been crying out against the small amount of material necessary nowadays should cheer up. By the way, has anybody heard of a tailor—during this era of narrow skirts and short coats—who has offered to make up a suit for less than his regular price because of the small amount of material required? But, of course, this has nothing to do with evening frocks, so back to Dolly Varden panniers!

A very dainty costume of this sort, by Francis, is illustrated. The bodice and panniers are in one, and suggest the old-fashioned sacque, worn over a stomacher and petticoat during the Eighteenth Century. The quaint little gown is made of Pompadour taffeta, with lilacs and roses in pastel tints on a white ground, and the pannier drapery is subdued to slender lines. The sleeves and fichu of lace and net make the gown very summery, and the color scheme is emphasized by a cluster of pale mauve roses at the corsage. With this Dolly Varden gown are worn, very properly, high-heeled Colonial slippers, and the picture hat of leghorn is faced with wistaria taffeta and trimmed with white plumes and black velvet streamers artistically knotted under the brim.

Odd Whims of French Couturiers.

While panniers are made to continue into trains, sashes by the same token become coat tails. A coat tail sash reaching to the bottom of the skirt is shown in a Cherult evening gown of lace flouncing. The lace forms a pannier drapery over a petticoat also of lace, and there is a delightful little coat of cerise chiffon over the bodice and shoulder. At the back this bodice extends downward in a coat tail—or, one might say that the sash of cerise chiffon fell over the skirt in coat-tail effect. At any rate, the sash coat tail reaches to the floor over the lace pannier drapery, and a big, soft bow of taffeta holds sash end and lace drapery against the narrow skirt. Rhinestoné embroidery on the cerise coat and sash, and a large rhinestone bowknot across the back of the waistline make this cerise and white costume very magnificent. Rhinestone trimming is a perfect craze in Paris, and the sparkling, thread-like lines of fiery rhinestones, edging delicate chiffon and lace draperies are wonderfully effective. The rhinestone band trimming is atrociously expensive—one must pay almost two dollars a yard for even a narrow band of the stones, set in imitation silver, and unless the trimming is handled with utmost care, the rhinestones drop out and the trimming is utterly spoiled. Chiffon and lace bodices appear to be held up over the shoulder with strings of rhinestones, and for some reason or other, even when the flesh is well covered with fabric the effect seems to be extremely decollete. Some of the new evening bodices are outrageous. They may pass in Paris, where modesty and conservative taste are not held in the same regard as over here, but one marvels that American women—granddaughters of stern old Puritan settlers in some cases—can wear such effects. Yet the extreme decolletage is the fashion, and the modestly cut bodice, with only a small square or V of throat showing, really looks prim and countrified nowadays. But the limit seems to have been reached in a French evening gown worn at the Comedia Francais recently—and in the audience, too. This gown had a trailing skirt of flesh-colored chiffon over pale pink charmeuse, and above the high waistline a bodice of pearl beads sewn on silver net. This bodice was worn directly over the skin, and strings of pearls held it over the shoulders.

Pearls Immensely Fashionable.

Never were pearls more in favor than they are now, and it is not necessary to own a fortune in real pearls to be in the mode. Handsome strings of imitation pearls are worn by many women who can well afford the real sort, and when the imitation is clever it is almost impossible to tell the difference—except by holding the pearls in the hand and testing the weight. Drecoll is using pearls a great deal this season, in trimming effects, and some superb Drecoll evening gowns have net tunics covered with looped strings of small pearls, in barbaric, but beautiful, effect. Pearl fringes and bands are used on dainty dancing frocks of light chiffon, and with white lace pearls are especially lovely.

Small silk roses are also used on the summer evening gowns, and these tiny roses are particularly pretty on debutante dancing gowns. A gown of this sort, made by Worth, has a white satin tunic over a petticoat of lace flounces, and the tunic appears to button down the back with tiny pink silk roses, while clusters of roses loop up the lace flounces on the skirt. Pink satin buttoned boots with high heels are provided for this dainty dancing frock. Another adorable dancing frock of lavender chiffon has nine scalloped flounces on the skirt, each flounce edged with a tiny quilling of lavender taffeta. Clusters of violets are caught here and there among the scalloped flounces, and at the crossing of a draped fichu bodice. Many of the lace and net dancing frocks for midsummer evenings have three or more lace ruffles on the skirt, lifted at the left side and lapping over each other. Sometimes a festoon of roses runs from the lifted ruffles to the belt line to emphasize the lifted effect, though the ruffles are, of course, sloped upward on the skirt, which is not really lifted at all. At the foot, between the lapped edges of the lower ruffle the little slippered or booted foot shows plainly. High-heeled boots of satin, with crystal buttons, are affected by smart women for evening wear this season, and there are buttoned strap slippers, which come high over the instep in very chic effect. Silver slippers with pale silvery gray silk stockings, are more fashionable this year than the gold slippers and stockings worn last season. These silver slippers and stockings are worn with white and colored evening frocks alike.

The Apron a New Trimming Motif.

Rather domestic in suggestion is the apron of contrasting fabric, hanging at the front of a rich gown; but apron effects have crept in, and are undoubtedly the fad. The apron gown pictured is from Jeanne Lanvin, and is made of black thread lace over white charmeuse. The vest in the bodice, and apron hanging below, are of the white charmeuse and small crystal buttons go down the center of vest and apron.

One of the smaller illustrations shows a new theater cap, which looks for all the world like a bathing cap, so snugly does it fit down over the head, and so little hair is visible under it. This cap is made of thin gold tissue, and at its edge there is a tiny pleating of Nattier blue taffeta to match its wearer's eyes. A bowknot made of small loops of silver braid sprawls over the front and top of the cap.

SUMMER MOURNING Comfortable yet Correct

THERE is no reason why the woman in mourning should not be as comfortable in her black garb as her sister who revels in summery pastel tints. The days of stuffy bombazines and wool mourning fabrics have passed, and thin silks, crepes, dull finished black mohair and various cotton and silk weaves are at the command of the wearer of mourning. Black, at best, is a warm color to look at, and unfortunately the woman robed in mourning habiliments is often depressingly warm in suggestion on a broiling summer day; but there is no reason why she should be warm in reality, and she is likely to appear much more smartly dressed in her trim, thin black than others in crumpled linens or carelessly-fitting tub frocks.

Veil for a Young Widow, Draped in Modish Manner.

The wearer of mourning will wisely buy a few well-made things, of very best material rather than a quantity of cheaper clothes; for only the finest materials are distinguished in black; and it should always be kept in mind that mourning wear, because it may not make any appeal with charm of color, must be distinguished and elegant to be pleasing. There is no getting around the fact that it costs more to dress in mourning than in colors; but the mourning period is short, after all, and most women prefer to expend a little more at this time, taking excellent care of the few clothes purchased, than to go about looking frumpish or pitiable in cheap black.

There are certain conventions which must be observed, if one's mourning is to be correct. Be it remembered that mourning is not deep simply because it is woe-begone, but because of its adherence to the regulations that govern deep mourning. So long as it is built of proper materials and conforms to certain rules, first mourning may be unutterably "deep," yet at the same time quite perceptibly coquettish. The French have a knack of making mourning wear more full of grace and coquetry than even gaily colored raiment; and though the frivolity of French mourning offends the taste of women in real sorrow, there are many French mourning ideas which might be followed with profit by English and American women who, accepting the fact that they must "wear black" for a certain time, settle down to a year or two of dull, uninteresting garb of somber hue.

Crepe relieves the dead black of mourning fabrics, and gives much smartness and distinction to the simplest gown. Crepe is very fashionable now, and is used all through the period of mourning, not only by the widow, but by those in mourning for parents, a brother or sister or a child. Blouses of chiffon or net trimmed with pipings of crepe are exceedingly smart, and are worn with two-piece suits of black cheviot or dull finished serge. Thin black China silk makes an ideal summer street frock for the woman in mourning, and such a frock, simply made, is illustrated. This frock has a three-flounce skirt and a simply cut bodice, with a little yoke of tucked net, outlined with dull jet trimming. The sleeve falls over a long undersleeve of tucked net. It is not considered correct in mourning to wear a frock minus a wrap in the street, and there are hosts of graceful scarf-wraps of chiffon, thin silk and crepe de chine, finished at the ends with tassels, that make simple mourning frocks very chic.

For house and evening wear there may be cool, thin frocks of chiffon, thin black silk, crepe de chine, dull black taffeta and black dotted swiss. Dull jet beads and trimming may be used with such frocks, but bright jet is not for mourning frocks. Tucks, hemstitching, pipings and buttons of the material or dull jet may be used, and by all means have tuckers, yokes and sleeves in these evening and house gowns of transparent net or chiffon. The Dutch neck is never worn out of doors by the woman in mourning. Only a tall, neatly boned stock collar will give the smart correctness necessary, and the collar must be tall enough and carefully enough fitted to the neck to prevent any suggestion of the loose or sloppy appearance which immediately makes mourning commonplace. If the stock and yoke are made of very transparent net or chiffon a double thickness of the material should be used, for anything approaching a decollete effect is in the worst of taste with a mourning costume.

The widow's veil is as interesting in its way—from a romantic standpoint—as the bride's veil, though one alas typifies a loss of the happiness that the other symbolizes! The widow's veil is thrown back after the first few months, but its graceful, voluminous folds envelop its wearer for a year at least. A perfectly draped veil and bonnet for the widow are pictured. The bonnet is slightly larger than an ordinary toque and is faced inside with white crepe.

White crepe neck fixings are becoming and fashionable, and are worn even in deep mourning. There are collars, cuffs, jabots and smart little neck bows of this white crepe and sometimes black crepe trimmings are added.

Boots and gloves are an important part of mourning dress. Patent leather, of course, is barred, and gun metal or dull calf footwear is substituted. With the street costumes dull calf buttoned boots, or boots having buttoned tops of twilled cloth are correct; or buttoned oxfords of dull calf may be worn if desired. With house and evening gowns, Colonial pumps with gun metal buckles, or buttoned boots of black suede will be correct. Dull black kid or suede gloves are required for formal occasions. Black silk gloves are allowable in hot weather, but gloves must always be worn out of doors with the mourning costume. Dull jet jewelry, or pearls, mounted in jet settings may accompany the mourning gowns, but all gold jewelry is under the ban. If a gold watch is carried it must be hidden out of sight. A string of pearls around the neck, however, is considered correct, and often lends grace to a black gown.

LIFE-SAVING DRILLS FOR FIREMEN

It pays to have firemen who can show athletic qualities betimes. An instance brought to public attention in Boston the other day proves this if any proof were necessary. A three-horse fire team became unmanageable and ran away; a tug being broken the animals were beyond the control of the driver. They headed straight for a group of children playing on a lawn and they were going at full speed. The children with one exception noticed the danger and escaped. One little tot stood as if bewildered, not knowing which way to move. A fireman on the rear of the big truck saw the danger, jumped and outstripped the horses in speed until he reached the child and grasping it by the clothing swung it aside when the front wheel was almost upon it and after it had barely escaped the horses hoofs. This stunt was highly creditable, and the man who thus saved the child's life should be rewarded either by promotion or by the humane society. Yet he did only what any fireman should do; but what few would be quick enough to accomplish.

The life of a fireman, especially the Lowell fireman, is not calculated to promote the muscular activity that would enable him to perform stunts such as that described or some even more dangerous in the work of life-saving at conflagrations. Let the best athlete in the country sit down quietly in one of our fire houses year in and year out as our firemen have to do and he would lose his activity; his muscles would become stiff and cramped up, and in a few years he would be unable to jump over a four-foot fence. The human body, like most other organisms, must grow and improve or else it will deteriorate. There is no such thing as preserving muscular activity without exercise, training and practice. The athletes and ball players are well aware of this. The same principle applies to the firemen of Lowell whose muscular activity, strength and in consequence their usefulness, are being reduced and deadened by inactivity and lack of proper exercise. Is it not practicable then to devise some form of regular drill and exercise that will enable these men to hold their strength and their agility for real emergencies in fire fighting? If they are to depend upon actual calls in response to alarms they will have but little to keep them in trim for the real ordeals in fire fighting. They should have frequent drills in, the use of apparatus, in raising and ascending ladders, in using life-nets and scaling walls where the ladders cannot be used. We need in the fire department a corps of men who can do a number of stunts that will test the muscular ability and activity of all the men, so that when the chief reaches a fire and wants a man to do a perilous act he will know just who can do it and who cannot. At present the custom, we understand, is to call upon the man nearest the danger to do whatever may be required to save life or avert disaster. That particular man may lack the ability to do what is required of him while any one of half a dozen others on the scene may be able to do it with the greatest ease.

We should have life-saving squads made up of picked men from the department, and the work of this squad should be emulated by all the other men as a means of keeping up their preparedness for emergencies. We have been fortunate in not having any very bad fires of late; but that should not cause us to assume that we are not likely to have some, nor to allow our firemen to get out of practice. It is said that rust consumes iron faster than labor wears and similarly it may be said that inactivity, lack of exercise and proper attention to training will consume our elasticity of muscle, our strength and physical power. Hence to save our firemen from this form of deterioration, regular drills and some form of exercise calculated to preserve their strength and activity are indispensable.

THE RIVER ROAD

Governor Foss says he knows that the road between Lowell and Lawrence is in bad condition, having passed over it last fall in an auto. Let us assure the governor that it is in a much worse condition at the present time and that teaming over it is so dangerous that double the regular price is usually charged. The section of road to be finished is only about half a mile in length, and that is what the county and state highway commissions have been fighting over for the past year. The people of Lowell and Lawrence have been too passive in this matter. They are not in a mood to put up with any further imposition or neglect. Had the county and state highway appropriations been properly expended this road would have been completed long ago. It would be an outrage to cause any further delay.

MORE STRIKE TALK

Any clique, union, nationality or agitator who agitates a general mill strike for a mere trifle at this time will be set down as an enemy of our city and will receive no public sympathy. If a few operatives cannot get things to suit them at any particular mill the wisest course is to seek employment elsewhere, not to agitate for a general strike. It is well known that there are paid agitators in town whose business is to harass the mills in every way possible by causing strikes for little or no cause. If strikes and labor troubles are continuous their salaries go right on, not otherwise. Moreover these paid agitators get five or six times the wages of the ordinary mill operative.

It is stated that Roosevelt votes in Ohio cost three dollars a piece and Taft votes half that amount. That may explain why the Taft votes were not more numerous.

The Greeks who won the applause of the community in the recent strike should not throw away their reputation for independence.

Business is good throughout the city and will remain so unless some labor trouble comes up to tie up some of our industries.

And Tom Lawson for senator. General Coxey will probably be next to announce his candidacy.

Col. Roosevelt may not use intoxicants but that does not prove that he is a temperate man.

Seen and Heard

Who does not relish the smoky-toned and prim sampler of the eighteenth century, wrought by some little maid of ten, who has now been dead these many years but whose painfully neat needle-work survives to tell her name, the date, and her misguided taste in 18th century religious doggerel, with the letters of the alphabet, and possibly a border of flowers, with an occasional cat, dog, or parrot in the corner? The degree of art in these ingenious effusions is various, but their appeal does not wholly depend on this. They are familiar voices from a not too remote past, the past of our grandmothers and great-grandmothers, reminding us that they were once demure little girls.

Almost all of them were adorned with verses or mottoes of a solemn, and sometimes even lugubrious tenor, as, for instance, the one beginning:

Ann Jordan is my name,
English is my nation;
Scituate is my native place
And Christ is my salvation.

Another very affecting piece of pictorial allegory is the silk-embroidered sampler, on which is depicted a scene in a cemetery, with the two mortuary monuments of strange design, two very high-waisted women mourners standing nearby, and weeping willow of the most weepy description at the right. The singularly pessimistice tone of the most of the sampler literature reminds one of the wonderful child genius described by Mark Twain in his "Life on the Mississippi," whose poetry was so dismal and gloomy that it plunged the whole neighborhood into an ecstasy of melancholy, says the Boston Transcript.

TO A HORSE CHESTNUT TREE

The following beautiful lines to a horse chestnut tree on a humble street are written by our old friend J. Carpenter:

For many years I've watched
You bud and leaf and blow,
Nor failed each spring to see
Your blossoms white as snow.

Not here does wild-bird come,
To sing and build its nest;
The bee doth scarcely know
Thee in his zealous quest.

Yet children come and play
Beneath the ample shade,
Waiting impatiently
Until thy nuts are made.

Old friend, if you but stood
Upon a hill's high crest
Or where the world could see
Your Beauty would show best.

Still, in this quiet street,
Dark, dusty and unknown
Amongst the sombre elms
Thou'st queen upon her throne!

Who planted thee and nursed
Thy tender years? Did he
Survive to see thee grow
To thy maturity?

Or does he dwell where blooms
Celestial trees—where swells
The groves with melody
Sweeter than Israfel's!

Yet lives he in the heart
Of one who, loving, lays
The wreaths of memory
And the palms of praise.

Who was he? Know but this:
That, one day, long ago
Some good kind soul did plant
This tree and watched it grow.

RARE BOOKS RUINED

Water Destroyed Lawson's Collection

BOSTON, May 25.—Thomas W. Lawson lost $15,000 in rare books yesterday as the result of a break in the water pipe in Young's hotel, where he has offices. The books were collected by Mr. Lawson in various foreign countries which he visited, and some of them cannot be replaced.

The water break was discovered by the watchman of the hotel, who notified Manager Gallagher. Upon the arrival of Mr. Lawson he was told of the affair, and while he regretted it very much, told Mr. Gallagher that "It will be all right in a short time."

The offices of Mr. Lawson are located on the third floor of the hotel, facing Court street. Some of the books damaged by the water were bound in London by a famous binder and cost a considerable amount of money and were highly prized by Mr. Lawson.

Mr. Lawson carried no insurance against damage by water, but carries an insurance of more than $100,000 against fire.

The hotel suffered no damage beyond the wetting of the carpet in the office.

DOCTORS GAVE HER UP

Mrs. Stuart Finally Saved By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Her Story Interesting.

Elmo, Mo.—"I think your Vegetable Compound is wonderful for it has helped me. I had four doctors and they said I had female troubles and a tumor and nothing but an operation would help me. I could not sit still long enough to eat, and could sleep hardly any I was in so much misery with pains in my side and back.

"A year ago last spring my doctor gave me up, and he was surprised to see me this spring and to see my condition. I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the praise wherever I go for I know I would not be here today or have our fine baby boy if I had not taken it." —Mrs. SARAH J. STUART, R.F.D. No. 2, Box 16, Elmo, Mo.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

We challenge anyone to name even one other medicine that has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

$1,000,000 GIVEN FOR EDUCATION

Colleges Must Raise an Equal Sum

NEW YORK, May 25.—Nearly $1,000,000 was contributed to the cause of education by the general education board founded by John D. Rockefeller at its meeting here yesterday.

Of this sum, $700,000 was appropriated for distribution among five colleges, the largest contribution of $250,000 going to the George Peabody college for Teachers at Nashville, Tenn., for the establishment of the Seaman A. Knapp School of Country Life.

The other colleges awarded appropriations are:

Beloit college, Beloit, Wis., $100,000; Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Ia., $100,000; McAlester college, St. Paul, Minn., $50,000; University of Rochester, Rochester, N. Y., $200,000.

It is explained that the gifts to the colleges mentioned are all conditional upon an equal sum being raised by the respective institutions.

Aside from the college appropriations the sum of $210,100 was set aside for demonstration work in agriculture in the southern states; for professors of secondary education in state universities of the south, and to aid the work of negro education in the south. The demonstration work appropriation is $133,000.

The miscellaneous appropriations were:

For professors of secondary education in the several state universities of the southern states, $33,100.

For the supervision of negro rural schools in Kentucky, North Carolina and Virginia, $9000.

To three negro schools—Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va.; Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala., and the Spelman seminary of Atlanta, Ga., the sum of $35,000.

LAUDS CATHOLIC CHURCH

Rev. Dr. Jones Says it is Doing Great Work

BOSTON, May 25.—The Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, D. D., author and leader of the Abraham Lincoln Centre work in Chicago, created a stir at the afternoon session of the Free Religion association yesterday in Ford hall, when he rallied to the defence of th Catholic church.

He declared that there was no danger of the Catholic church dominating the American government, and added: "I would rather see a Catholic priest a political boss than a grafting Protestant."

The Rev. Dr. Charles Fleischer, leader of the Sunday commons, and Chas. D. Wendte, foreign secretary of the Unitarian Fellowship, had made charges against the Catholic church, saying at the morning meeting that Catholicism is un-American and threatens the union and integrity of the United States. Dr. Jones' remarks in the afternoon came as a surprise.

"The Catholic church," said he, "is a mighty power, coming down century after century, and has done and is doing a wonderful work of uplifting humanity. I ask that the Free Religious association consider this church with the other denominations. The Catholic church is helping to digest the immigrants and put them on a proper plane, and so long as the Catholic church meets the immigrants as they enter Castle Island I do not worry about the future of these new citizens to come.

FOUR ARRESTED

THEY ARE CHARGED WITH VIOLATING MEAT INSPECTION LAW

BOSTON, May 25.—Four market men were arrested yesterday on complaint of the pure food inspectors, charged with violating the meat inspection laws.

The defendants are Joseph Flione, Pendelas Themo, Charles Johnson and George Dossa, former members of the Boston Meat Market and Provision company. They are charged with shipping lamb, hamburger steak and provisions to Gomez & Co. at Manchester, N. H., that had not been inspected, although it was stamped with a trade label marked, "United States Inspected and Passed." The meat was seized at the North station before it was shipped to Manchester.

This is the first arrest for an offence of this kind in Boston. Other arrests are expected to follow, as an effort is being made to enforce the meat inspection regulations strictly.

All four defendants pleaded not guilty when arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes. Pending a hearing on May 29, they were permitted to go on their personal recognizance in the sum of $500 bail.

WOMAN RESCUED

SHE WAS TAKEN FROM A BURNING BUILDING

BOSTON, May 25—Miss Ethel Kammerer was rescued from her home, 230 Pearl street, Somerville, yesterday, during a fire that caused a damage of $300. Miss Kammerer was ill in the house and her mother went to the attic. She heard her daughter calling and left in the attic a burning candle. The candle overturned and set fire to the house. It burned fiercely through the roof. Miss Kammerer was taken out by her mother and the firemen and assisted to the house of a neighbor, where she collapsed.

THE BACHELOR GIRLS SCORED BIG SUCCESS

In Song Revue at Asso. Hall Last Night

Associate hall was crowded to the doors last evening and all present greatly enjoyed the performance of the M. T. I. Bachelor Girls in their novelty song revue. The girls gave the performance about one month ago and scored a tremendous success and the requests for a repetition were so numerous that the managers decided to give it a second time. While the people in last night's show were the same as those participating in the former performance, the songs were all new and the soloists were obliged to respond to a number of encores.

The stage presented a beautiful sight. It represented a steamer and was one of the prettiest stage settings ever seen at an amateur show. The girls were prettily attired in light dresses and during the show a spot light was operated that added greatly to the picturesqueness of the surroundings.

The entertainment opened with an overture by Gilmore's orchestra, under the direction of William T. Gilmore, who also had charge of the show. The following program was then given: Opening chorus, M. T. I. Bachelor Girls; special number by quartet, "Down by the Old Mill Stream," Misses Boland, Buckley, Bonin, Nolan; "Dreaming of the Girl I Love," Miss Alice Bonin; "Andy," Miss Marion Nolan; "A Little Something, That's All," Miss Jennie Wynn; pony ballet, Misses King, McPherson, Cawley, Hurley, Buckley, Bolan, Connolly, Reardon; "I Want to Be in Dixie," Miss Madeline Boland; "I'll Dream of You If You'll Dream of Me," Miss Mae Carroll; sailor's hornpipe, special feature, Miss Esther Clancy; "That Gaby Glide," Miss Alice Mealey; grand finale, "Meet Me Tonight," Miss Elanor Buckley.

Each number was cleverly given and the soloists were the recipients of enthusiastic applause. At the close of the show the Bachelor girls were warmly congratulated for their excellent work as was also William T. Gilmore, director, and James F. Rourke, organizer of the troupe.

After the entertainment, the floor was cleared for dancing and an order of 16 numbers was enjoyed, music being furnished by Gilmore's orchestra.

The committee in charge of the entertainment was as follows: General manager, James J. Gallagher; floor marshal, George R. O'Neil; committee on arrangements, George F. Briggan, John E. O'Neil, Patrick H. Crowley, Henry J. Burrington, Peter F. Brady, Bernard A. Conners, Walter T. Powers, John T. Guthrie, James F. Rourke; aids, M. T. I. Bachelor Girls.

WEEP AND YOU WEEP ALONE

INSTRUCTIONS FROM THE BOSS.

"Helen, what does that young man who called last night do?"
"He's a baseball player, father."
"Well, tell him to cut out his squeeze plays when he comes up here."

Prepared for 'Em.

WE'VE had the porch painted and screened in, too,
The thinnest mosquito can never squeeze through;
We have bought a new hammock, Flo's schooldays are gone—
Now let the warm nights and the fellows come on.

SHE has just graduated—I'm speaking of Sis,
And she's busy expecting a season of bliss;
The hammock was made to accommodate two,
And the fringe on the edges is yellow and blue.

SHE'S through with her studies, her troubles are past;
Besides having beauty her knowledge is vast;
Her hats and her dresses cost father a lot,
But don't think we're kicking, because we are not.

WE'VE had the porch painted, the hammock is hung,
Ma says that once only a girl can be young;
She's a peach, sister is, and as trim as a fawn—
Now let the warm evenings and fellows come on.

CLEVER MANAGEMENT.

Mrs. Swift—Mrs. Wise is such a clever manager.
Mrs. Smith—Is she?
Mrs. Swift—Yes. Her husband gave her the money to get their two daughters graduating dresses, and she bought herself a lovely gown with it.

Bluffing Jackson.

"DIDN'T I see you on this car the other day?" he asked of the man who was smoking with him.

"Shouldn't wonder," was the reply.

"Didn't we talk about election?"

"Very likely."

"Didn't I ask you who you were going to bet on?"

"Yes."

"And your idea was that it was too early to place any bets yet?"

"Yes, I remember."

"And I told you that there was a feller named Tom Jackson, who was bluffing the life out of me for a bet, and that I'd rather go a block around than meet him?"

"I think you said so."

"And I entreated you, sir, to give me a tip on a safe bet?"

"Yes."

"And you told me to hit Tom Jackson's trail with a ten-dollar bill and run him down, and shake the bill under his nose and offer to bet two to one that—that—"

"I have forgotten."

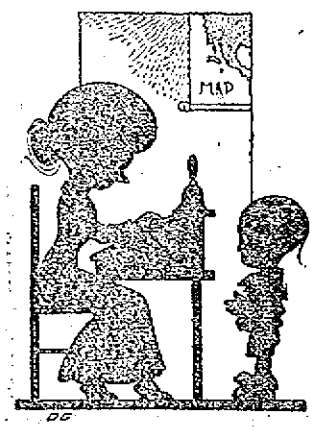

"Well, I haven't. I hit his trail and run him to his hole and shook that bill at him and offered to bet that the Judgment Day wouldn't be along for 76 years yet, and great Scotts—!"

"What?"

"It was just as you said it would be. He hemmed and hawed and swallowed the bluff and shut right up, and I don't believe anybody in town can get a ten-cent bet out of him for a year to come. Complete wilt, sir, and now he's going a block out of his way, and I'm as bold as a lion, and I thank you and hope to do as much for you sometime."

A CASE OF CONSCIENCE.

I DID a kind o' mean thing comin' in today," said the Long Island farmer when the six dozen eggs had been counted out to the grocer.

"You don't look like that sort of a man," was replied.

"Oh, I reckon I've got my mean streaks, same as the rest. I was drivin' by them golf grounds, and I seen a feller knockin' the balls from hole to hole."

"Yes?"

"It made me sorter mad, and I hitched my team and climbed the fence and said to the feller:

"'Strikes me that this is a durned silly business for a grown man.'

"'I've thought that way myself sometimes,' he replied.

"'Jest knocking balls around.'

"'That's all.'

"'Better be home splittin' wood.'

"I thought he might say something mean back to me, but he didn't. He give one of the balls a swipe and then throwed down his mallet and bust into tears."

"You don't say!" exclaimed the grocer.

"Yes, I do, busted right into tears and looked up at me and said:

"'I hain't got any home!'

"'What's the matter?'

"'I'm an orphan.'

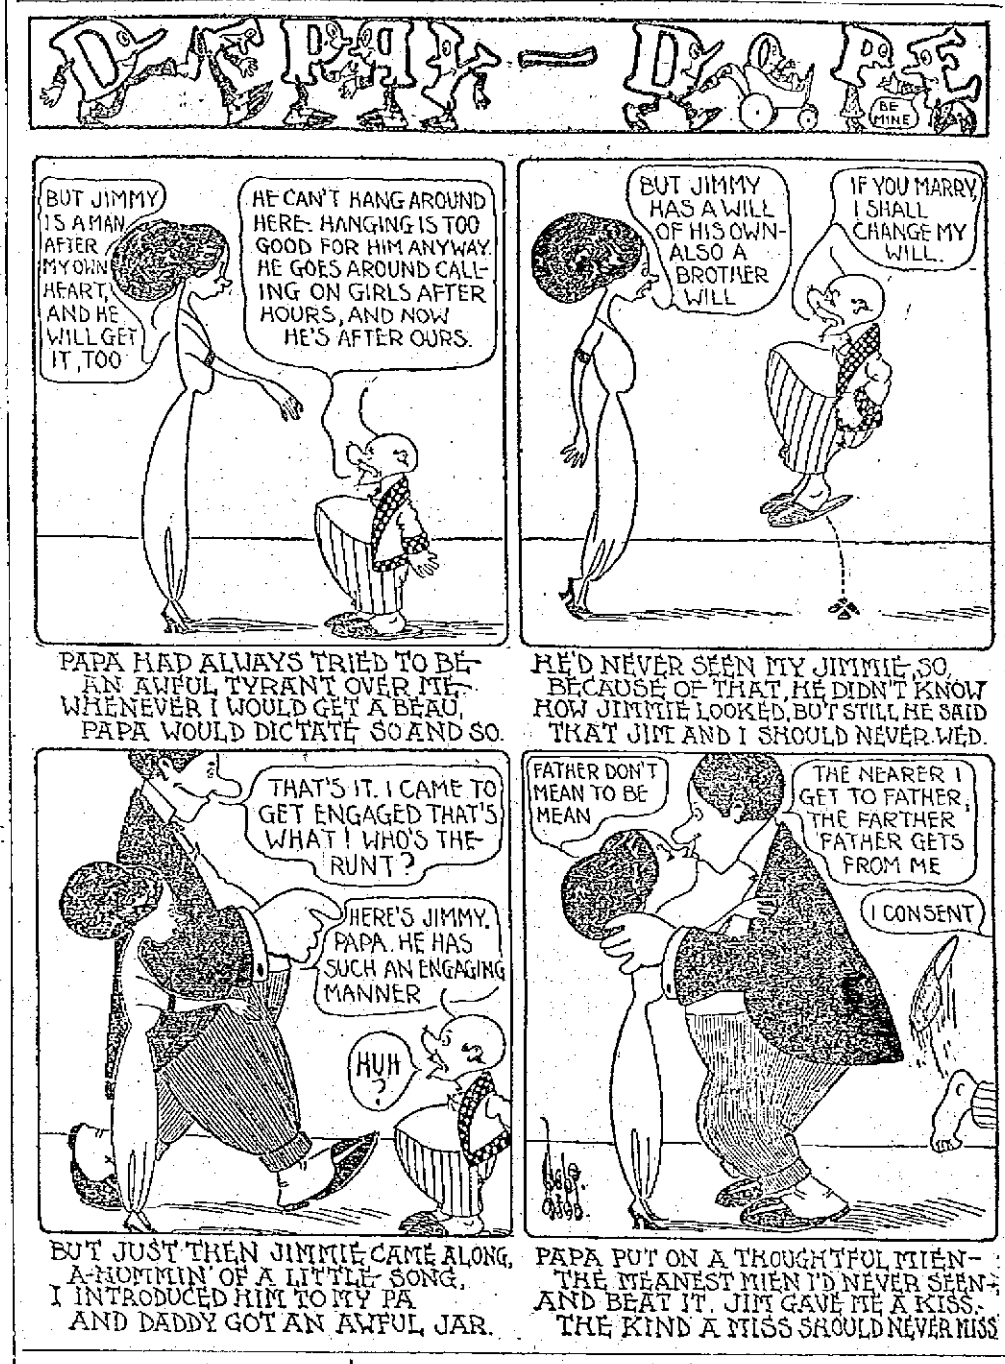

"'Wall, split wood for somebody else, then.'

"'I hain't got no ax.'

"'I might lend ye one.'

"'But it would bring on another hemorrhage of the lungs.'

"Wall, there he was, said the farmer—'a dyin' orphan out knockin' the balls around to save his life a leetle longer, and I climbin' the fence to abuse him! Darn mean of me, and I own right up, and if he's there when I go back I'm goin' to offer him a paper of smokin' tobacco and tell him he'd better come along and die at my house instead of under some strawstack."

FORCE OF HABIT.

Mazie—How did the star's automobile happen to be run down last night? Didn't he have any lights?

Kitty—He had plenty of lights but he had them all turned around and focused on himself.

THE DAY'S FABLE.

IT having been announced to the Birds and Beasts that a new ruler over them was to be elected, there was great commotion. The Eagle, the Buffalo, the Peacock, the Bear and the Wolf went about saying that they did not seek the position, but that if it was offered them on a triple-plated spoon they would feel it a duty to accept, but after a time the race settled down between two Lions.

The Birds and Beasts had had a good opinion of both, but it soon leaked out that one had done this and the other that, and that neither was all-wool and a yard wide. Then the Lions themselves went about to tell of each other's unfitness, and to crack up their own virtues, and in despair of what to do the electors sent a deputation to the Owl to say:

"O, Bird that hast never bought a gold brick, how doth this thing look to thee? Call up all thy wisdom and give us some straight talk."

"Um!" replied the Owl, as he rolled his eyes upward. "As I understand it, there are two lions in the field?"

"Sure, Mike."

"And the electors are not exactly satisfied with either?"

"That is the case."

"Then why not stampede from both and take me!"

MISCONSTRUED.

CONTRACT IS AWARDED FOR CHALIFOUX BUILDING

A Very Busy Season Faces the Builders—New Houses To be Erected

The contract for the excavation and foundation of the new Chalifoux building in Merrimack street to be erected on the site of the old wooden one formerly occupied by A. E. O'Heir and George F. Fairburn, was awarded to the R. H. Howes Construction company which is erecting the new Sun building. The plans for the new building are now being drawn by Derby, Robinson and Shepard of Boston and it is expected they will be finished soon.

The plans call for a six-story building, but Mr. Paul Chalifoux stated this morning that only four of the stories will be finished for the present. The work of tearing down the old building is nearly completed and according to the contract the foundations will be ready by July 1st. When the other two stories are put on, the cornice line of the new building will be even with that of the Colonial building. As the plans for the building are not complete yet, the other contracts have not as yet been given out.

Swimming Pool

Work on the new swimming pool and gymnasium at the Rogers Hall school in Rogers street which is being done by Contractor Charles Whittet, is progressing rapidly. The outside of the brick building is nearly finished and the roofers are now busily engaged in setting the slate roof. In ten days it is expected the men will be shifted on the inside work of the building and by July it is presumed the edifice will be finished and equipped.

New Theatre

If plans are carried as formulated, Lowell will add another theatre to its already long list, and the new one will be situated in Merrimack street on the site of the Tremont house. The plans are now being drawn by Architect Harry Prescott Graves and they call for a four-story building of limestone. The building will extend from Merrimack to Market street, the first floor in the rear of the edifice to be used as a vaudeville theatre. On the first floor also will be stores, some in Merrimack and others in Market street. The theatre will occupy about 1400 feet of floor space. The second floor will be composed of offices, while the other floors will be constructed in tenements. The tearing down of the old Tremont house it is expected will be started in a very short time.

New Houses

Contractor Genest has started work on two two-tenement houses in Highland avenue and has just completed two double houses and a cottage in Forrest street. Avila Sawyer will start Monday the construction of a three-story apartment house in Dracut street. Next week he will also complete a double house and two cottages in Parker street. Paul Vigeant is soon to start work on a six-apartment house at 14-16 Dodge street. The structure will be built of cement blocks and will be three stories high, each apartment to have five rooms. Charles B. Winters has started work on a dwelling house of six rooms in Florence avenue, the estimated cost being $3000.

Y. M. C. A. FIELD DAY

On Saturday, June 1st, a field day will be held at Washington park, Lowell, open to members and friends of the Lowell Young Men's Christian association. This will mark the formal opening of the park as the athletic field and baseball grounds for the association members for the season.

A full program has been scheduled for June 1st, beginning at 1.30 p. m. and continuing until 9.30 in the evening. The band of thirty pieces from the Middlesex county school at North Chelmsford will furnish the music. There will be athletic and gymnastic demonstrations and a number of competitive track and field events. The marathon and the comedy races will be especially interesting.

There will be a baseball game between the Y. M. C. A. team and one of the local nines. Baseball events such as circling the bases for time, bunting to first base, accurate throwing, distance throwing and fungo hitting will also be interesting to lovers of this sport.

A military exhibition is promised, also boy scout maneuvers and a boys' model airship show and aviation meet.

Other special features in the afternoon and early evening will be the special gymnasium apparatus work and the midway.

The evening program beginning at 7.45 will be especially enjoyable, Mr. Walter Muzzey and Mr. Theodore Pearson being in charge.

Refreshments will be served by a committee from the Women's auxiliary. The admission fee of 15 cents for adults and 10 cents for children covers both the afternoon and evening program.

How to be Beautiful

(Parisienne" in Woman's Realm)

"To have a clear, soft and velvety complexion, massage the face, neck and arms daily with a solution made by dissolving an original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch hazel. It prevents facial blemishes and makes the skin lovely, smooth and fair.

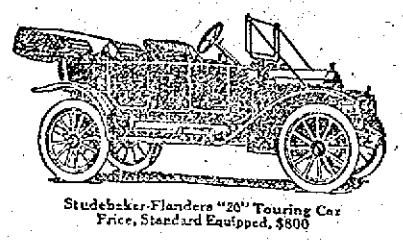

"A dry shampoo is better than washing the head, and there is no danger of catching cold. Mix four ounces of powdered orris root with an original package of therox, sprinkle a little on the head and brush it out well. It refreshes the scalp and makes the hair clean, light, wavy and lustrous.

"Hairs on the face mar a woman's beauty. They will vanish quickly if delatone paste is applied. Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the hairs; apply and permit to remain two or three minutes; then rub off, wash the skin, and the hairs will be gone.

"For sores, skin eruptions, pimples, eczema and similar beauty destroyers, try Mother's Salve. It heals cuts, burns, scalds without leaving a scar, and is recommended for obstinate sores."

Respectfully represents your petitioner, the Bay State Street Railway Company, a corporation duly established under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and doing business in the City of Lowell, that by the terms of grant of location in Pawtucket street and in Bridge street in said City of Lowell, the space between the inner rails of the two tracks is fixed at not less than three feet six inches, nor more than four feet, and that public convenience and necessity require that such space should be fixed at four feet six inches, and a greater distance at connecting and other curves; also that it desires certain alterations, relocations and extensions of locations of its tracks in said City of Lowell and that public convenience and necessity require the same.

Wherefore it respectfully petitions your Honorable Council as follows: That the requirements as to Pawtucket and Bridge streets be changed so that the space between the inner rails of the two tracks shall be four feet six inches, with such additional width in connecting and other curves as safety may require, and to the satisfaction of the city engineer and superintendent of streets and approval of the board of railroad commissioners.

Also to relocate its tracks on Pine street, from Liberty street to Stevens street, and to construct a turnout between Wilder and Stevens streets on Pine street; to extend its present turnout on Church street one hundred feet easterly; and to relocate its present turnout on Lawrence street, near Watson street, at a point about 300 feet southerly from its present location, together with such switches, curves and cross connections as may be necessary or convenient for the operation of the cars of said company, and all substantially as shown on plans to be filed for the hearing to be held hereon.

And to erect, place, maintain and use such poles, wires and other appliances as are usual and necessary in the overhead trolley system of street car propulsion and to propel cars by such system over the said tracks with electricity as the motive power, or to use such other motive power as the laws of this commonwealth permit and the municipal council shall from time to time approve, and to make such underground and surface alterations in the ways through which these alterations, relocations and extensions of locations are granted as may be necessary.

PENTECOST SUNDAY TO BE OBSERVED

Tomorrow—First Communion at Immaculate

Tomorrow in the Catholic churches the feast of Pentecost will be observed by special masses and sermons.

At St. Anthony's church Rt. Rev. Bishop De Silva will celebrate a solemn pontifical high mass. The members of the parish will form a procession in Union street and march through Chapel street to the church. The procession will be led by the Lithuanian band, reaching the church about 10.30 o'clock when the service will begin.

Tomorrow will be a great day at the Immaculate Conception church as a large number of children will make their first communion at the early mass to be celebrated by Rev. Fr. Sullivan, while Rev. Fr. Tighe and Rev. Fr. McQuaid who prepared the children, will give the communion. A solemn high mass will be celebrated at 11 o'clock in observance of the feast of Pentecost. There will be a procession in the evening made up of the first communion children, the Children of Mary and the Immaculate Conception sodality.

Next Friday the forty hours' devotion will open at the Immaculate Conception church with a solemn high mass and will close on Trinity Sunday following.

Sacred Heart Church

On next Wednesday evening in the Sacred Heart school hall the members of the Children of Mary sodality will give an entertainment and dance. As this will be the last dancing party of the season, the members plan to make it one to be long remembered.

At the 8.30 o'clock mass at the Sacred Heart church tomorrow a large class of children will receive first communion. A special musical program has been arranged for the occasion. After mass the communicants will march to the school hall where breakfast will be served by the members of the Holy Rosary sodality.

St. Margaret's

The general committee of men of St. Margaret's parish, organized to conduct a field day or lawn party in aid of the parish will hold a meeting tomorrow evening when a report will be submitted by the sub-committee appointed at the last meeting. It is understood that the sub committee will report favorably on the plan

St. John's, North Chelmsford

The service of the forty hours devotions will open at the 9.30 o'clock mass at St. John's church on Sunday, June 12. The first communion service will also be held at the mass and a large number of children will receive the sacrament. The children are in charge of the sisters of the Notre Dame.

The cadets of St. John's are holding weekly open air drill in the rear of the church and the manner in which they are acquainted with the many movements speaks well for their instructor and themselves.

Their First Communion

Tomorrow morning at the 7.30 o'clock mass at the Immaculate Conception church one hundred and fifty children will approach the holy table and receive their first holy communion. During the past month they have received instructions for the great event and the final lessons were given yesterday afternoon. The children will first assemble in the school hall at 7 o'clock and will march in twos to the church where seats in the centre aisle will be reserved for them. A special musical program will be given and the altars will be decorated in honor of the occasion.

The list of children to receive communion tomorrow is as follows:

The basement of the Immaculate Conception church which for the past three months has been closed, undergoing extensive repairs will soon be ready for occupancy. The work is practically completed and but for a few finishing touches it might at any time be opened. The place at the present time is very beautiful and when finished will be one of the prettiest church basements in this vicinity. A feature of the improvements is the fact that everything was done by local men. The architectural work was done by Henry Rourke, the painting by Dwyer, the kartolite floor by American Safety Tread company, gas and electrical fitting by H. R. Barker company.

Rev. Dennis A. Sullivan, O. M. I., of the Immaculate Conception church will leave Lowell next week for New London, Conn., where he will preach a two weeks' mission at St. Joseph's church. The mission will open June 2 and close June 16. Fr. Sullivan will be assisted by Rev. James McDermott, O. M. I., of the Sacred Heart church.

The character party of the Young Men's Catholic Institute will be held in Associate hall next Wednesday evening.

Owing to the fact that Rev. Fr. Sullivan, spiritual director of the O. M. I. Cadets is to leave this city, the military mass of the cadets has been postponed to the latter part of June. The cadets will meet in regular session next Wednesday evening and arrangements will be made for their annual encampment.

The annual communion Sunday of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will be held at the Immaculate Conception church tomorrow. The members of all the divisions will assemble in their hall at 7 o'clock and will wear their regalia with white gloves and will then march to the church and attend the 7.30 o'clock mass. This time honored custom is embodied in the constitution of the order and it is also the wish of the national officers, hence it is expected that all will be present.

All the selections were played with much spirit and were appreciated by the audience, which was generous in its applause. Mrs. Roberts gave great pleasure in her group of songs, all of which she sang with fine voice and excellent expression. Mr. Andreoli, the violinist, also made a favorable impression in his solos, which he played in a faultless manner.

It is pleasant to note the great progress Miss Reilly has made in the teaching profession and the thoroughness displayed by the pupils in last evening's recital shows that besides being a talented and brilliant player herself, she has the faculty of imparting to others the ability to play the masterpieces of the old composers with beauty, grace and ease.

The young men who ushered were: Dr. George T. O'Donnell, Messrs. John E. Hughes, James H. Gannon, Edward P. Heelon, John P. Meehan and John H. Kivlan.

LAWNDALE FARM

OLD NASHUA ROAD, TYNGSBORO, MASS.

With its 90 acres of fine rich cultivated land, the farm house of 10 rooms, engine house, carriage house 32x40, barn 120x38, lodge, hennery, pig house, and the beautiful waving fields of green, the product of which will be harvested in the near future; all pledged to the highest bidder at public auction, in one lot, regardless of any condition of the weather.

Mr. Murphy, the present owner of the premises, is determined in disposing of this fine parcel of property. He is fully cognizant of the sacrifice he is making in such disposition, but the death of his wife a short time ago causes his act.

THE PLACE:

Situated on the east bank of the Merrimack, affording a most splendid view of the winding river and surrounding country, as the elevation there where the buildings set) is about 100 feet above the river's surface; together with its vast acreage of newly seeded ground rich in its fertility and producing some of the best English hay grown around these parts. The 30 or more full grown pines bordering the intervale opposite the homestead, lending their natural, unrestricted beauty; the facilities for city conveniences, its distance of but one mile to Tyngsboro village, with two state roads and car line, and but five minutes' walk to the Lowell and Nashua car line on the east side, giving it the desired exclusiveness and accommodation, and in all making it one of the best farm properties that will be offered at public competition this season.

THE BUILDINGS:

The house consists of 10 large rooms with good cellar and adjoining shed.

The barn, 120x38, thoroughly constructed, with extra heavy timbers, contains 30 box stalls and is equipped with hay carrier which runs on trolley and deposits the load to any part of loft, where the storage for hay is almost unlimited. The foundation is mostly of granite and encloses a postless basement for the breeding and care of hogs. This building winters many horses during the season and is adjoined by a fine paddock.

The carriage house will accommodate eight or ten carriages, the basement of which is used as a tool house.

The lodge, which sets on the west side of the road, consists of two rooms, one all sheathed in Carolina pine, has hardwood floor, fine brick fireplace, and a wide piazza on the north and west sides.

The engine house supplies the buildings with running well water at 60 pounds pressure, a 1000-gallon tank being installed in the basement of the dwelling house.

The hennery consists of four hen houses and yards all wired in.

The land consists of about ninety acres, about thirty of which is woodland, the remainder of which any part can be ploughed with a sulky plough, and has cut as high as 100 tons of hay a season. That part of the land which sets on the east side of the Old Nashua road has a frontage on the road of almost one half a mile. The intervale which consists of 10 acres is situated on the opposite side of the road and runs to the river.

The location, as stated above, is a most desirable one, with easy access to all points, situated half-way between Lowell and Nashua with the state road to either place but a mile away.

PERSONAL PROPERTY:

Immediately after selling the farm, the following personal property will be disposed of:

One black horse, 10 years old, weighs about 1600 lbs., works single or double; one bay mare, 4 years old. This mare is an extra fine roadster, will road 12 miles an hour and has fine stable manners; one French coach stallion, by Kasbath. He will be 3 years old in September, is brown in color, and has never been broken to harness; one calico horse, weighs about 1200 lbs.; 2 sets of heavy team harness; one single express harness; one extra fine Cummings' farm wagon, with side boards and hay rack; one express wagon; one wood wagon, two or three horse hitch; one large hay wagon; 3 extra fine sleds, 2 with side boards; 1 two-horse dumpcart; 1 Kimball Rockaway, leather lined; 2 light Concords, one heavy Concord; one Deering 2-horse mowing machine; one Eclipse corn planter; one Osborn disc harrow; one Keystone hay loader, windrow or swath; one Deering tedder; one Kemp manure spreader; one Sulky plough; 1 two-horse iron land roller; one American seeder; one blacksmith forge, anvil and tools; one wind rower, and one clover cutter.

Terms of sale: $500 will be required and must be paid to the auctioneer by the purchaser as soon as the real property is struck off. On personal property the terms will be cash, and must be paid for on day of sale.

The nearest way of approach from either Lowell or Nashua is to take the Lowell and Nashua line of electrics, get off at Johnson's corner at Tyngsboro, and this property is but a five minutes' walk.

Make all inquiries of the auctioneer, Charles F. Keyes, Green street, Lowell, Mass. Tel. 1485.
